Code of Federal Regulations ,2006 Energy from the Desert Keiichi Komoto,2013 This 4th volume in the established Energy From The Desert series examines and evaluates the potential and feasibility of Very Large Scale Photovoltaic Power Generation VLS PV systems which have capacities ranging from several megawatts to gigawatts and to develop practical project proposals toward implementing the VLS PV systems in the future Comprehensively analysing all major issues involved in such large scale applications based on the latest scientific and technological developments and by means of close international co operation with experts from different countries From the perspective of the global energy situation global warming and other environmental issues it is apparent that VLS PV systems can contribute substantially to global energy needs become economically and technologically feasible soon contribute significantly to the global environment protection contribute significantly to socio economic development Energy policies around the world are gradually changing direction to focus less on nuclear energy with the expectation to turn to denuclearization entirely with the negative impacts of nuclear energy while in parallel the importance of and expectations for renewable energy technologies are increasing drastically as possible energy infrastructure as well as environmental friendly technology This book recognises that very large scale solar electricity generation provides economic social and environmental benefits security of electricity supply and fair access to affordable and sustainable energy solutions and that VLS PV systems must be one of the promising options for large scale deployment of PV systems and renewable energy technologies

From Flood Safety to Spatial Management Emmy Bergsma,2018-07-25 This book deals with the introduction of a new type of spatial measures in flood governance In contrast to traditional safety measures that aim to provide protection against floods by building structural flood defenses such as levees and flood walls the goal of spatial measures is to reduce the exposure to flood risks by changing the spatial layout of flood prone areas By limiting developments and flood proofing buildings in areas at risk to flooding investments in structural flood defenses can be circumvented and vulnerabilities reduce World wide spatial measures are gaining attractiveness as a response strategy to increasing flood risks caused by climate change and urbanization The introduction of spatial measures in flood governance involves more than the simple development of new policies and laws Research has demonstrated that the implementation of spatial measures can have huge implications for how costs and responsibilities are divided between different levels of governance and between public and private actors changing the whole organization behind flood governance Both for the effectiveness and for the legitimacy of spatial flood governance strategies it is important that these distributive implications are well understood This book describes the introduction of spatial measures in the context of two very different delta countries the Netherlands and the United States In the United States a spatial flood governance strategy was already developed in the mid 20th century whereas in the Netherlands a safety paradigm institutionalized over the course of the 20th century and spatial measures have only recently been introduced By analyzing the science policy interactions underlying the implementation of spatial measures in both countries this book shows how under the influence of different types of experts engineers in the Netherlands and social geographers in the United States different spatial flood management strategies emerged with different distributive implications each with its own challenges for effectiveness and legitimacy
