Arts-Based Education Tatiana Chemi, Lihong Wang, Xiangyun Du, 2019-05-07 Core texts addressing creativity in a number of contexts show that creativity as a scientific subject has received principally the attention of Western scholars. Is this due to the fact that Western cultures are more creative or sensitive to creativity than the Eastern cultures? The editors strongly believe that this is more due to the differences in understanding and practising creativity in the West and East than to an Eastern indifference to creativity.

Arts Based Education China and Its Intersection with the World investigates the field of arts based educational practices and research. It argues that reflections on these themes must necessarily be reframed and re-read beyond the limits of colonialist oppositions and suggests a constructive and reflexive approach to theory and methodology which takes into account intercultural and critical perspectives in these studies. This volume is the tangible product of the acknowledgement that China and Chinese culture deserves a more systematic and up to date dissemination through recent studies that bring together the arts learning and creativity. It is clustered around two themes: 1. China and its communication with the world through arts based education in international contexts and 2. the development of arts education in China.

Early Childhood in the Anglosphere Peter Moss, Linda Mitchell, 2024-05-09. Written by two leading international experts, Early Childhood in the Anglosphere offers a unique comparison of early childhood education and care services and parenting leave across seven high income Anglophone countries. Peter Moss and Linda Mitchell explore what these systems have in common, including the dominance of childcare services, widespread privatisation and marketisation, and weak parenting leave. They highlight the substantial failings of these systems and the causes and consequences of these failings. But this book is ultimately about hope: about how these failings might be made good through major changes. In other words, it is about transformation: why transformation is both necessary and possible at this particular time; what transformation might look like and how it might happen. Part of that transformation concerns the need for new policies and structures, but even more, it is about how the Anglosphere thinks about early childhood. The authors call for turning away from conceptualising early childhood services as childcare and marketised businesses selling commodities to parent consumers and for reconceptualising them as education imbued with an ethics of care, a public good available as a right to all children and families and complemented by well paid individual entitlements to parenting leave. Using examples from the Anglosphere and beyond and in a context of converging crises, the book argues that transformation of thinking, policies and structures is desirable and doable.
