A Rose in Winter Catherine Miller,2014-05-01 On one cold winter s eve two broken souls meet through unfortunate circumstances Tragically deformed and disillusioned toward the world of his fellow men Erik must learn compassion for the young woman in his care Christine must overcome the fear the streets of Paris have instilled within her upon the death of her guardian Sometimes healing can only be found in the arms of another X Her eyes welled once more and she shook her head slowly No It is She sniffled loudly putting aside her bowl and wrapping her arms around herself tightly There are cruel men who like to She seemingly could not give voice to what perversions the men of Paris were inclined to inflict on her I am well aware of just how cruel men can be Her eyes rose to meet his and for a brief moment he felt she could truly see him Her eyes roamed over his mask and for the first time he did not begrudge her for it What is your name He gave a slight smile though he knew she could not see it My name is Erik

A Rose in Winter Sean Fowler,2015-03-08 The poetry in this book is more singularly focused than any other work I have completed The poetry still revolves around challenges of spirituality the difficulty of relationships and utter joy associated with them as well And though in some regard it is not specifically just about any one person there are much more moments that are solely surrounding one individual That individual is the reason for the work The story is still being written The rose not only surviving the harshest scenario but thriving is what makes the rose so special and perfect Though it does not see its roots its petals nor core being or stem it becomes an obligation to tell her the story of herself She only grows she doesn t she her magnanimous surroundings the impending storms and avalanches heading her way She only knows that were the sun is she will grow Seeing her heart her will her strength to achieve and believe in herself And that is what makes me feel great about me that I can recognize those characteristics in her Shower her with as much as I can give because in her strength I become more complete I cannot withstand the challenges for her they are hers however I can whisper in her ear that she is loved admired and desired
