Access Control Design on Highway Interchanges, 2008 The adequate spacing and design of access to crossroads in the vicinity of freeway ramps are critical to the safety and traffic operations of both the freeway and the crossroad The research presented in this report develops a methodology to evaluate the safety impact of different access road spacing standards The results clearly demonstrate the shortcomings of the AASHTO standards and the benefits of enhancing them The models developed as part of this research were used to compute the crash rate associated with alternative section spacing The study demonstrates that the models satisfied the statistical requirements and provide reasonable crash estimates The results demonstrate an eight fold decrease in the crash rate when the access road spacing increases from 0 to 300 m An increase in the minimum spacing from 90 m 300 ft to 180 m 600 ft results in a 50 percent reduction in the crash rate The models were used to develop lookup tables that quantify the impact of access road spacing on the expected number of crashes per unit distance The tables demonstrate a decrease in the crash rate as the access road spacing increases An attempt was made to quantify the safety cost of alternative access road spacing using a weighted average crash cost The weighted average crash cost was computed considering that 0 6 34 8 and 64 6 percent of the crashes were fatal injury and property damage crashes respectively These proportions were generated from the field observed data The cost of each of these crashes was provided by VDOT as 3 760 000 48 200 and 6 500 for fatal injury and property damage crashes respectively This provided an average weighted crash cost of 43 533 This average cost was multiplied by the number of crashes per mile to compute the cost associated with different access spacing scenarios These costs can assist policy makers in quantifying the trade offs of different access management regulations Field Testing of Railroad Flatcar Bridges: Multiple spans, 2007 Based on the conclusions of IHRB Project TR 444 Demonstration Project Using Railroad Flat Car Bridges for Low Volume Road Bridges additional research on the use of RRFC bridges was undertaken This portion of the project investigated the following Different design and rating procedures Additional single span configurations plus multiple span configurations Different mechanisms for connecting adjacent RRFCs and the resulting lateral load distribution factors Sheet pile abutments Behavior RRFC s that had been strengthened so that they could be used on existing abutments A total of eight RRFC bridges were tested five single span bridges two two span bridges and one three span bridge Based on the results of this study a simplified design and rating procedure has been developed for the economical replacement bridge
