would've been unrecognizable to their medieval practitioners Through new readings of key authors and works including Prudentius's Psychomachia Langland's Piers Plowman Boethius's Consolation of Philosophy and Deguileville's Pilgrimage of Human Life she finds that medieval writers accessed a richer more fluid literary domain than modern critics have allowed Breen identifies three different types of personification Platonic Aristotelian and Prudentian inherited from antiquity that both gave medieval writers a surprisingly varied spectrum with which to paint their characters while bypassing the modern confusion of conflicting relationships between personifications and persons on the path connecting divine power and human frailty Recalling Gregory the Great's phrase machinae mentis machines of the mind Breen demonstrates that medieval writers applied personification with utility and subtlety much the same way that within the category of hand tools an open end wrench differs in function from a hex key wrench or a socket wrench It will be read by medievalists working at the crossroads of religion philosophy and literature as well as scholars interested in character making and gendered relationships among characters readers and texts beyond the Middle Ages
