Signal, 2009 Punishing the dead? R. A. Houston, 2010-08-05 What can we learn from suicide that most personal and often inscrutable of acts This strikingly original work shows how from treatment of suicides in historic Britain unique insights can be gained into the development of both social and political relationships and cultural attitudes in a period of profound change Drawing ideas from a range of disciplines including law philosophy the social sciences and literary studies as well as history the book comprehensively analyses how successful and attempted suicide was viewed by the living and how they dealt with its aftermath using a wide variety of legal fiscal and literary sources By investigating the distinctive institutional environments and mental worlds of early modern England and Scotland it explains why suicide was treated as a crime subject to financial and corporal punishments and it questions modern assumptions about the apparent enlightenment of attitudes in the eighteenth century The book is divided into two parts Part one examines the role of lordship in managing social and economic relationships following suicide and illuminates the importance of distinctive punishments inflicted on suicides bodies for understanding historic communities The second part of the book places suicide in its cultural context analysing the attitudes of early modern people to those who killed themselves It explores religious beliefs and the place of the devil as well as secular and medical understandings of suicide s causes in sources that include provincial newspapers Informed by continental as well as British research Punishing the Dead explicitly compares England and Scotland making this a completely British history It also offers intriguing evidence for the importance of cultural regions and local vernaculars that transcend national boundaries Practicing Science, Living Faith Philip Clayton, Jim Schaal, 2007 Twelve scientists from diverse backgrounds and disciplines demonstrate that it is indeed possible for profound intellectuals to integrate the life of science with the life of faith In honest and inspiring interviews they describe the difficult though rewarding process of reconciling their faith with their science and reveal the ways in which the two spheres can not only coexist but also mutually enhance each other Jane Goodall begins the conversation by emphasizing the importance of recognizing the spark of spirit that runs through all creatures human and animal Robert Pollack discusses his motivations for opening a major center for the study of science and religion at Columbia University Khalil Chamcham a Moroccan astrophysicist and devout Muslim moves from the study of galaxy formation to a new dialogue between Islam and the West Thomas Odhiambo a Kenyan entomologist helps to bring sustainable agriculture to sub Saharan Africa by uniting African animist and Christian traditions and Henry Thompson a computer scientist utilizes his Quaker practice in both his science and his work as a mediator Thoughtful and compelling these and other scientists recount a rich integration of science and religion in their practice their experience and their approach to their work Some find a deep harmony between the life of faith and the practice of science whereas others struggle with the ongoing tensions These original interviews range across the metaphysical ethical and religious implications of cutting edge research Taken together they offer a unique picture of how scientists make peace with their work and their spirituality Assembling Life David W.
