Functions of the Nervous System

To carry out its normal role, the nervous system has three overlapping functions.

1. Monitoring changes. Much like a sentry, it uses its millions of sensory receptors to monitor changes occurring both inside and outside the body; these changes are called stimuli, and the gathered information is called sensory input.
2. Interpretation of sensory input. It processes and interprets the sensory input and decides what should be done at each moment, a process called integration.
3. Effects responses. It then effects a response by activating muscles or glands (effectors) via motor output.
4. Mental activity. The brain is the center of mental activity, including consciousness, thinking, and memory.
5. Homeostasis. This function depends on the ability of the nervous system to detect, interpret, and respond to changes in internal and external conditions. It can help stimulate or inhibit the activities of other systems to help maintain a constant internal environment.

Marshall Hall (1790-1857) Diana E. Manuel, 2020-01-29 Marshall Hall was trained as a physician in the early nineteenth century scientifically oriented University of Edinburgh Medical School. The son of a Methodist cotton manufacturer and bleacher at Nottingham Hall believed that in science lay the future for progress in medicine. Following early work on diagnosis of women's disorders and on blood letting, Hall came to specialise in the nervous system and in particular on the concept of reflex action. For Hall, who proposed a mechanistic explanation of reflex action, Galenic animal spirits and souls in decapitated creatures were out. A superb experimentalist, Hall strove to establish experimental medicine/physiology as the basis of the medical curriculum instead of anatomy, the long-standing domain of the surgeons. They were among the strongest critics of Hall's vivisection procedures despite his efforts to establish a Code of Practice. Hall was involved in several controversies within and without the Royal Society where he was victimised by its Physiological Committee. He addressed a range of social and public health issues including the abolition of slavery and devised a new method of resuscitation and a more sensitive physiological test for strychnine detection. He also proposed plans for improving and linking sewage disposal and the transport system of the metropolis.
