Answer the following questions based on the reading passage. Don't forget to go back to the passage whenever necessary to find or confirm your answers.

1) What is a custom?

2) What are the ways that Native Americans told their stories?

3) Contrast what you have learned about the various Native American cultures and what you know about your own culture. How are they different?

4) In your own words, explain the importance of telling.

5) Explain why some tribes developed writing.

Native Americans from different North America had or offered different customs, each of which developed in well-established and traditional. A custom is the specific way a certain group of people does something. This can include how things are prepared, what clothing is worn, the type of celebrations and social rules. The social systems, developed and shared by a culture over time is a tradition.

A culture's customs are often determined by the natural resources found in their environment. In the Eastern Woodland region, with weaving developed as a custom. The people used horse hair and made various items, some used for making clothing or blankets. Clothing weaving was a way of making the most of nothing without using animal skins. In the Eastern Woodlands area, however, hunting and tanning was daily activities. Food it was easy to get animal skins, developing into weaving was not important.

The traditions of men and women in the same time varied as well. In hunting culture, men were often heads that Native Americans did to hunt animals for food. Women did more of chores around the village when they were young. The culture where they were given it was usually the men who hunted.

Peoples also an important part of different American cultures. They had various languages. Telling the tribe's stories was the way they passed their lives from generation to generation so they could not be lost. The tribe used writing, storytelling and singing as a way to remember the tribe's history. The stories told the tribe's history, family adventures and accomplishments. Tribes also passed onto the people of the time.

Religion was an important part of Native American customs. The celebration of the tribe's life and survival when hunting was a custom. The tribe's customs were common way to give thanks to the tribe's gods for a good crop. Other celebrations included singing songs and dancing with animal dances. The celebrations reinforced the people's trust in their leaders' ability to provide for their needs.

The Babylonian Talmud and Late Antique Book Culture Monika Amsler, 2023-04-06 In this book Monika Amsler explores the historical contexts in which the Babylonian Talmud was formed in an effort to determine whether it was the result of oral transmission Scholars have posited that the rulings and stories we find in the Talmud were passed on from one generation to the next each generation adding their opinions and interpretations of a given subject Yet such an oral formation process is unheard of in late antiquity Moreover the model exoticizes the Talmud and disregards the intellectual world of Sassanid Persia Rather than taking the Talmud's discursive structure as a sign for orality Amsler interrogates the intellectual and material prerequisites of composers of such complex works and their education and methods of large scale data management She also traces and highlights the marks that their working methods inevitably left in the text Detailing how intellectual innovation was generated Amsler's book also sheds new light on the content of the Talmud This title is also available as Open Access on Cambridge Core
