The Urban Ecologies of Divided Cities Amira Osman, John Nagle, Sabyasachi Tripathi, 2023-06-12 The book discusses how division affects the fabric of cities and people's sense of identity and agency and are reflected in physical features architecture and urban planning The question of divided cities represents a complex and multistranded urban Ecology at once both social and spatial it cannot be limited to a single science or discipline such as social or spatial fields This suggests integrated and cross disciplinary understandings as well as integrated or parallel approaches and solutions Urban ecologies of division manifest in multiple forms One of their most palpable expressions is conflict with parallels around the world and often with correlations in the spatial fabric Violence in such contexts is often a surface expression of deeper socio economic or ideological differences Whether as a result of intervention by authority or by dissent between groups a divided city inevitably becomes a place of conflict in various forms and intensity eroding the joy of living and sense of collective belonging to the detriment of all In effect it erodes the collective advantage of being part of a more unified society A city exists in collections of social structures which mutually form a society A divided city implies divided social structures and in consequence a divided society The papers compiled in this book present many case studies of divided cities discussing the different causes of divisions and their effects on societies Some of the causes can be linked to conflicts wars colonialism or legislative political systems In response to the serious challenges resulting from these divisions the book aims to provide opportunities for new approaches and possibilities for new interventions and solutions making it significant to urban planners architects and policymakers

Routledge Handbook of African Media and Communication Studies Winston Mano, Viola C. Milton, 2021-02-12 This handbook comprises fresh and incisive research focusing on African media culture and communication The chapters from a cross section of scholars dissect the forces shaping the field within a changing African context It adds critical corpora of African scholarship and theory that places the everyday worlds needs and uses of Africans first The book goes beyond critiques of the marginality of African approaches in media and communication studies to offer scholars the theoretical and empirical toolkit needed to start building critical corpora of African scholarship and theory that places the everyday worlds needs and uses of Africans first Decoloniality demands new epistemological interventions in African media culture and communication and this book is an important interlocutor in this space In a globally interconnected world changing patterns of authority and power pose new challenges to the ways in which media institutions are constituted and managed as well as how communication and media policy is negotiated and the manner in which citizens engage with increasing media opportunities The handbook focuses on the interrelationships of the local and the global and the concomitant consequences for media practice education and citizen engagement in today s Africa Altogether the book foregrounds convivial epistemologies relevant for locating African media and communication in the pluriverse This handbook is an essential read for critical media communications cultural studies and journalism scholars

Ivory Keith Somerville, 2016 Despite the 1989 global ivory trade ban poaching and ivory smuggling have not abated More than half of Tanzania s elephants have been killed for their ivory since 2007 A similarly alarming story can be told of the herds in northern Mozambique and across swathes of central Africa But why the new upsurge The popular narrative blames a meeting of two evils criminal poaching and terrorism But the answer is not that simple Since ancient times large scale killing of elephants for their tusks has been driven by demand beyond Africa s range states from the Egyptian pharaohs through the industrialising West to the new wealthy business class of China Elephant hunting in Africa is also governed by human elephant conflict traditional hunting practices and the impact of colonial exploitation and criminalisation Ivory follows this complex history of the tusk trade in Africa and explains why it is corruption crime and politics rather than insurgency that we should worry about In this ground breaking work Somerville argues that regulation not prohibition of the ivory trade is the best way to stop uncontrolled poaching Publisher s description
