Guide to Biometrics Ruud M. Bolle,Jonathan H. Connell,Sharath Pankanti,Nalini K. Ratha,Andrew W. Senior,2013-06-29 Starting with fingerprints more than a hundred years ago there has been ongoing research in biometrics Within the last forty years face and speaker recognition have emerged as research topics However as recently as a decade ago biometrics itself did not exist as an independent field Each of the biometric related topics grew out of different disciplines For example the study of fingerprints came from forensics and pattern recognition speaker recognition evolved from signal processing the beginnings of face recognition were in computer vision and privacy concerns arose from the public policy arena One of the challenges of any new field is to state what the core ideas are that define the field in order to provide a research agenda for the field and identify key research problems Biometrics has been grappling with this challenge since the late 1990s With the maturation of biometrics the separate biometrics areas are coalescing into the new discipline of biometrics The establishment of biometrics as a recognized field of inquiry allows the research community to identify problems that are common to biometrics in general It is this identification of common problems that will define biometrics as a field and allow for broad advancement

Molecular Tools for Screening Biodiversity A. Karp, D.S. Ingram, Peter G. Isaac, 2012-12-06 Mark Chase There are many literature resources available to molecular biologists wishing to assess genetic variation but the myriad of techniques and approaches potentially available to the plant breeder and the evolutionary biologist is truly bewildering and most have never been evaluated side by side on the same sets of samples Additionally it is often not recognized that tools that are useful for breeders can often be adapted for use in evolutionary studies and vice versa but this is generally the case The borderline between population genetics and phylogenetics is vague and difficult to assess and a combination of both types of tools is best when it is not clear with which area one is dealing Furthermore it is not now appropriate to use just one type of marker in any kind of study most markers have the potential to misinform under certain conditions so it is always wise to incorporate at least two different types of assessments into any project This volume is designed to facilitate this sort of multiple approach and provides comparative data on most currently available methods so that researchers can more intelligently select those appropriate to their area of interest regardless of whether it is in the realm of breeding or evolutionary biology Isolation of DNA from Dyed Denim Tamar Powell, 2007
