The Institutional Movement in American Economics, 1918-1947 Malcolm Rutherford,2011-02-21 This book provides a detailed picture of the institutionalist movement in American economics concentrating on the period between the two World Wars The discussion brings a new emphasis on the leading role of Walton Hamilton in the formation of institutionalism on the special importance of the ideals of science and social control embodied within the movement on the large and close network of individuals involved on the educational programs and research organizations created by institutionalists and on the significant place of the movement within the mainstream of interwar American economics In these ways the book focuses on the group most closely involved in the active promotion of the movement on how they themselves constructed it on its original intellectual appeal and promise and on its institutional supports and sources of funding stubbornly prevalent and powerful today However they are largely based on questionable assumptions about human behaviour and unproven theoretical ideas about economics They were founded within the realms of philosophy and politics rather than hard science This book illustrates how politicians have selectively borrowed convenient economic concepts in order to promote and defend policies which entrench and escalate inequalities and other structural problems This accessible book invites readers to question the ideas that rule us and explore the challenges facing society It invites progressive thought about how we need to urgently organise action for the future

Tan,2013-12-13 This book is the first systematic examination of the emerging arms race in Asia The global trade in arms is to a large degree underpinned by the strong demand for arms in Asia and the Middle East the two largest arms export markets in the world Of these two regions Asia has become particularly significant led by the emergence of China and India as major powers It is therefore not surprising that the rapid military modernisation in Asia accompanied by significant increases in the size and sophistication of armed forces has generated attention as to its trends key characteristics causes and implications This phenomenon which has become evident since the end of the Cold War has also been widely described as an Asian arms race This book evaluates the key conceptual ideas which can shed light on this phenomenon as well as examining the complex mix of internal external and technological factors that have led to its emergence The volume explores the way in which the arms race is leading ultimately to three distinctive blocs in the emerging geostrategic landscape a loose bloc of US allies in the region a counter bloc of potential US adversaries and a neutral bloc of states with industrial age armed forces whose allegiances will vary according to circumstances and geostrategic developments The Arms Race in Asia concludes that if the emerging arms race is left unchecked it is likely that Asia will increasingly become a region of instability marked by conflicts and interstate wars The book will be of great interest to students of Asian politics strategic studies defence studies security studies and IR in general
