

The Digestive System

What is the digestive system?

The digestive system, or gastrointestinal tract, is a tract of organs that is responsible for digesting and absorbing nutrients from food. Food enters through the mouth, is broken down in the stomach, and then moves through the small intestine, where nutrients are absorbed. The digestive system also includes accessory organs that help in the process, such as the liver, pancreas, and gallbladder.

Liver, pancreas & gallbladder

Just below the stomach, organs known as the accessories of the digestive system, which are connected to the stomach by the biliary and pancreatic ducts, assist in the digestive process. The liver is a large organ on the right side of the abdomen that produces bile, a substance that helps in the digestion of fats. The pancreas is a small organ located behind the stomach that produces pancreatic juice, a substance that helps in the digestion of carbohydrates, proteins, and fats.

Large intestine
The large intestine consists of the cecum, the ascending colon, the transverse colon, the descending colon, and the sigmoid colon. It is responsible for absorbing water and electrolytes from the undigested food, forming the feces.

Peristaltic action

Food material is pushed through the digestive system by a series of powerful, rhythmic contractions called peristalsis. These contractions are initiated by the gastrointestinal tract and the autonomic nervous system, which also controls the secretion of digestive juices.

The mouth & salivary glands

Chewing, the mechanical action of the food, is called mastication. It begins in the mouth, where food is broken down into small pieces by the teeth. The salivary glands, which are located in the mouth, produce saliva, a substance that helps in the digestion of food. The salivary glands are the parotid gland, the sublingual gland, and the submandibular gland.

The stomach

The stomach is a large organ that is responsible for the digestion of food. It is located in the upper left part of the abdomen. Food enters the stomach through the esophagus and is broken down by the stomach acid and the stomach muscles. The stomach is divided into two parts: the cardiac part and the pyloric part. The cardiac part is the upper part of the stomach, and the pyloric part is the lower part of the stomach.

Small intestine

The small intestine consists of three parts: the duodenum, the jejunum, and the ileum. It is responsible for the digestion of food and the absorption of nutrients. The small intestine is a long, coiled organ that is located in the upper part of the abdomen.

Absorption

The absorption of nutrients occurs in the small intestine. The nutrients are absorbed through the intestinal lining and enter the bloodstream. The absorption of nutrients is a complex process that involves the transport of nutrients across the intestinal lining and into the bloodstream.
