What This Significantly Means and For What Reason
 A significant correlation found in a study of 1990s-era U.S. adolescents revealed that the more time adolescents spent watching television, the more they were inclined to be obese. This finding is consistent with the trend reported in other studies. For example, a 2002 study of 11-year-olds in the United States found that adolescents who watched more than 2 hours of television per day were 40% more likely to be obese than those who watched less than 2 hours per day. This finding is consistent with the trend reported in other studies. For example, a 2002 study of 11-year-olds in the United States found that adolescents who watched more than 2 hours of television per day were 40% more likely to be obese than those who watched less than 2 hours per day.

12. Major research, including, where necessary, planning and implementation, should aim to:
 - (a) identify the needs of the community;
 - (b) establish the objectives for the service under consideration;
 - (c) develop a plan of activities to meet the identified needs;
 - (d) determine the resources available to meet the objectives;
 - (e) determine the methods of implementation;
 - (f) determine the methods of evaluation.
