Orthopaedic Trauma in the Austere Environment Juan de Dios Robinson, 2016-05-19 Orthopaedic trauma represents 75% of the casualties in a disaster. Many of these patients will be cared for by international volunteers but good intentions are not always matched by good preparation. This book explains how best to prepare for missions, how to deal with injuries in austere conditions, how to ensure a positive legacy and the need for cultural, political and legal awareness. All of the most common orthopaedic presentations encountered in the austere environment are covered. In addition to evidence-based research cases and actual experiences from the authors' missions are included to illustrate and bring to life key points. This book, written by a team of international experts with extensive experience of challenging field missions, will be an ideal practical guide for volunteers and health care workers helping them to deal with confusing, chaotic and distressing situations with greater confidence and efficacy.

Metallic Alloys: Experimental and Theoretical Perspectives J.S. Faulkner, R.G. Jordan, 2012-12-06 The development of new materials is recognized as one of the major elements in the overall technological evolution that must go on in order to sustain and even improve the quality of life for citizens of all nations. There are many components to this development but one is to achieve a better understanding of the properties of materials using the most sophisticated scientific tools that are available. As condensed matter physicists and materials scientists work toward this goal, they find that it is useful to divide their efforts and focus on specific areas because certain analytical and theoretical techniques will be more useful for the study of one class of materials than another. One such area is the study of metals and metallic alloys which are used in the manufacture of products as diverse as automobiles and space stations. Progress in this area has been very rapid in recent years and the new developments come from many different countries. For these reasons, the Advanced Research Workshop Programme in the NATO Scientific Affairs Division has seen fit to sponsor several meetings to bring together the researchers and students working in this field from the NATO countries and elsewhere. There have been a series of NATO ASI's that have dealt with the results of research on the electronic structure of materials and the properties of metals, alloys and interfaces. They are: Electrons in finite and infinite structures P. Phariseau and L. Canadian Geotechnical Journal, 2005.
