

Chapter 1 The Human Body: An Orientation

Most of us are naturally curious about our bodies; we want to know what makes us tick. This curiosity is even seen in infants, who can keep themselves happy for a long time staring at their own hands or pulling their mother's nose. Older children wonder where food goes when they swallow it, and some believe that they will grow a watermelon in their belly if they swallow the seeds. They scream loudly when approached by medical personnel (fearing shots that sting), but they like to play doctor. Adults become upset when their hearts pound, when they have uncontrollable hot flashes, or when they cannot keep their weight down.

Anatomy and physiology, subdivisions of biology, explore many of these topics as they describe how our bodies are put together and how they work.

 - Endocrine – hormones released from glands into the blood to target organs – control body's activities at a slower rate than nervous
