Women Doing Life Lora Bex Lempert, 2016-02-19 In Women Doing Life Lora Bex Lempert examines the carceral experiences of women serving life sentences presenting a typology of the ways that life sentenced women grow and self actualize resist prison definitions reflect on and own their criminal acts and ultimately create meaningful lives behind prison walls Looking beyond the explosive headlines that often characterize these women as monsters Lempert offers rare insight into this vulnerable little studied population Her gendered analysis considers the ways that women do crime differently than men and how they have qualitatively different experiences of imprisonment than their male counterparts Provided by publisher

Life Imprisonment Dirk Van Zyl Smit, Catherine Appleton, 2019-01-14 Life imprisonment has replaced capital punishment as the most common sentence imposed for heinous crimes worldwide As a consequence it has become the leading issue in international criminal justice reform In the first global survey of prisoners serving life terms Dirk van Zyl Smit and Catherine Appleton argue for a human rights based reappraisal of this exceptionally harsh punishment The authors estimate that nearly half a million people face life behind bars and the number is growing as jurisdictions both abolish death sentences and impose life sentences more freely for crimes that would never have attracted capital punishment Life Imprisonment explores this trend through systematic data collection and legal analysis persuasively illustrated by detailed maps charts tables and comprehensive statistical appendices The central question can life sentences be just is straightforward but the answer is complicated by the vast range of penal practices that fall under the umbrella of life imprisonment Van Zyl Smit and Appleton contend that life imprisonment without possibility of parole can never be just While they have some sympathy for the jurisprudence of the European Court of Human Rights they conclude that life imprisonment in many of the ways it is implemented worldwide infringes on the requirements of justice They also examine the outliers states that have no life imprisonment to highlight the possibility of abolishing life sentences entirely Life Imprisonment is an incomparable resource for lawyers lawmakers criminologists policy scholars and penal reform advocates concerned with balancing justice and public safety

Erzen,2017-03-07 An eye opening account of how and why evangelical Christian ministries are flourishing in prisons across the United States It is by now well known that the United States incarceration rate is the highest in the world What is not broadly understood is how cash strapped and overcrowded state and federal prisons are increasingly relying on religious organizations to provide educational and mental health services and to help maintain order And these religious organizations are overwhelmingly run by nondenominational Protestant Christians who see prisoners as captive audiences Some twenty thousand of these Evangelical Christian volunteers now run educational programs in over three hundred US prisons jails and detention centers Prison seminary programs are flourishing in states as diverse as Texas and Tennessee California and Illinois and almost half of the federal prisons operate or are developing faith based residential programs Tanya Erzen gained inside access to many of these programs spending time with prisoners wardens and members of faith based ministries in six states at both male and female penitentiaries to better understand both the nature of these ministries and their effects What she discovered raises questions about how these ministries and the people who live in prison grapple with the meaning of punishment and redemption as well as what legal and ethical issues emerge when conservative Christians are the main and sometimes only outside forces in a prison system that no longer offers even the pretense of rehabilitation Yet Erzen also shows how prison ministries make undeniably positive impacts on the lives of many prisoners men and women who have no hope of ever leaving prison can achieve personal growth a sense of community and a degree of liberation within the confines of their cells With both empathy and a critical eye God in Captivity grapples with the questions of how faith based programs serve the punitive regime of the prison becoming a method of control behind bars even as prisoners use them as a lifeline for self transformation and dignity

Freedom Inside? Farah Godrej, 2022 An estimated forty million people in the United States regularly practice yoga and as an industry it generates over nine billion dollars annually A major reason for its popularity is its promise of mental and physical well being yoga and meditation are thought to be spiritual paths to self improvement Yoga is also widely practiced in prisons another large business in the United States Prisons in all fifty states offer yoga and meditation as a form of rehabilitation But critics argue that such practices can also have disempowering effects due to their emphasis on acceptance non judgment and non reaction If the root of suffering is in the mind as the philosophy behind yoga and meditation suggests then injustice including mass incarceration may be reduced to a mental state requiring coping techniques rather than a more critical mindset Others insist that yoga can heighten people's attention to structural violence hierarchy racism and inequity In fact some of history's most radical activists including M K Gandhi and Thich Nhat Hanh traced their ethical and political commitments to their grounding in yogic or meditative traditions Yoga and meditation programs no doubt offer crucial respite for those who are incarcerated but what sort of political effects do they have Do they reinforce the neoliberal logic of mass incarceration which emphasizes individual choices or can they assist marginalized people in navigating systemic injustice Drawing on collaborations with incarcerated practitioners interviews with volunteers and formerly incarcerated practitioners and her own fieldwork with organizations offering yoga meditation classes inside prisons Farah Godrej examines both the promises and pitfalls of yoga and meditation Freedom Inside reveals the ways in which incarcerated persons have used yogic practices to resist the dehumanizing effects of prisons and to heighten their awareness of institutional racism and mass incarceration among poor people and people of color Godrej argues that while these practices could unwittingly exacerbate systemic forms of inequity and injustice they also serve as resources for challenging such injustice whether internally via the realm of belief or externally through action A combination of ethnography and political theory Freedom Inside reimagines the concept of resistance in a way that considers people's interior lives as a crucial arena for liberation

Women Lifers Meredith Huey Dye, Ronald H. Aday, 2019-06-08 The number of women in United States prisons has increased dramatically since the 1980s and has in proportion outpaced that of men's incarceration Despite these numbers incarcerated women and women lifers specifically represent a relatively small percentage of the overall correctional and lifer populations As such women lifers are easy to overlook discount and diminish as such a small group Many women lifers perceive themselves as a forgotten group most often those whom we lock up and throw away the key They feel excluded from prison programming within and from their own families outside They feel stigmatized by staff and other women in prison Aging fast many have real fears about declining health and losing family members over lengthy stretches of time However women lifers are some of the most resilient and strongest women who survive life in prison with the support of each other and religious faith often transforming themselves in the process of doing time While most of the women had extensive histories of trauma abuse and mental health issues few had prior experience as offenders Despite the term lifer many of these women will be released from prison after serving long sentences Beyond this basic profile there is much more to learn and share about the lives of women lifers Focusing on women s pathways into prison the ways they cope with life behind bars and their diverse reentry needs Meredith Dye and Ronald Aday give voice to women lifers and place their experiences within the larger context of penal harm policies The authors look at their physical and mental health family connections adjustment to prison prison supports and activities and experiences with abuse trauma while also looking at the growing public and policy concerns over mass incarceration in general Women Lifers provides insight into the lives of incarcerated women before during and following a life sentence especially the population of those serving life sentences With the growing numbers of women lifers in the United States the authors emphasize the importance for the public and policymakers to understand the unique circumstances that brought these women to prison the policies that keep them there and the major challenges they face in carving out a successful life in prison and beyond
