

ABACUS TECHNIQUES

The following techniques are Japanese and use a modern 1:4 bead Japanese soroban. I love Japanese soroban and it is the style of abacus I most often use. Collecting them has become a passion. Many soroban are beautifully crafted and wonderful to look at; especially the older ones. Some of the soroban in my collection have been signed by the craftsmen who made them and I love the way they work and feel. Some of them have been signed by their original owners. Each has its own history.

However, for some people the soroban may not be the instrument of choice. As already mentioned the Chinese have their own version of the abacus, a 2:5 bead suan pan. There are those who prefer to use a Chinese instrument because it has a larger frame and larger beads allowing for larger fingers. It really doesn't matter which instrument you use. The procedures are virtually the same for both and these methods are well suited to either instrument.

The Japanese Soroban

Fig.1

A soroban is made up of a frame with vertical rods on which beads move up and down. Dividing the upper and lower portion of the soroban is a horizontal bar called a beam or reckoning bar.

The Beam

On a modern-day soroban one bead sits above the beam and four beads sit below. The beads above the beam are often called heaven beads and each has a value of 5. The beads below are often called earth beads and each has a value of 1.

Along the length of the beam, you'll notice that every third rod is marked with a dot. These specially marked rods are called unit rods because any one of them can be designated to carry the unit number. While the soroban operator makes the final decision as to which rod will carry the unit number, it is common practice to choose a unit rod just to the right of center on the soroban.

The dots also serve as markers by which larger numbers can be quickly and efficiently recognized. For example in Fig.1 (above), rod I is the designated unit rod. For example, when given a number such as 23,456,789 an operator can quickly identify rod B as the 10 millions rod and go ahead and set the first number 2 on that rod. This ensures that all subsequent numbers will be set on their correct rods and that the unit number 9 will fall neatly on unit rod I.
