Research Universities in Africa Cloete, Nico, Bunting, Ian, 2018-11-09 From the early 2000s a new discourse emerged in Africa and the international donor community that higher education was important for development in Africa Within this zeitgeist of converging interests a range of agencies agreed that a different collaborative approach to linking higher education to development was necessary This led to the establishment of the Higher Education Research and Advocacy Network in Africa Herana to concentrate on research and advocacy about the possible role and contribution of universities to development in Africa This book is the final publication to emerge from the Herana project The project has also published more than 100 articles chapters reports manuals and datasets and many presentations have been delivered to share insights gained from the work done by Herana Given its prolific dissemination it seems reasonable to ask whether this fourth and final publication will offer the reader anything new This book is certainly different from previous publications in several respects First it is the only book to include an analysis of eight African universities based on the full 15 years of empirical data collected by the project Second previous books and reports were published mid project This book has benefited from an extended gestation period allowing the authors and contributors to reflect on the project without the distractions associated with managing and participating in a large scale project For the first time some of those who have been involved in Herana since its inception have had the opportunity to at least make an attempt to see part of the wood for the trees Different does not necessarily mean new An emphasis on the newness of the data and perspectives presented in this book is important because it shows that it is more than a historical record of a donor funded project Rather each chapter in this book brings to a lesser or greater extent something new to our understanding of universities research and development in Africa

Annual Budget Monitoring Report Uganda, 2015 Quality of Work Life and Job Satisfaction of Academic Staff in Public Universities in Uganda Julius Nyerere Kawemba, 2017-08-28 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2010 in the subject Pedagogy Media Pedagogy Makerere University East African School of Higher Educational Studies and Development course Education Management language English abstract The purpose of the study was to establish the relationship between quality of work life and job satisfaction of academic staff in public universities in Uganda using Makerere University as the case study The study was prompted by the chronic problem of academic staff job satisfaction in Makerere University since the 1970s with most lecturers not devoted to their jobs striking for salaries rampant absenteeism from work poor attitude late coming for work and leaving early delayed handing in of marks continuous complaints and high rates of turnover for greener pastures The study was guided by the following specific objectives to establish the relationship between employee involvement and job satisfaction of academic staff to examine the relationship between work environment and job satisfaction of academic staff to find out the relationship between remuneration and job satisfaction of academic staff and to establish the relationship between recognition and job satisfaction of academic staff A correlational cross sectional survey design was used to carry out the study A sample of 162 respondents was systematically selected to participate in the study Data were collected with the use of questionnaires Frequencies and percentages were used to show the distribution of respondents on different items Correlation and multiple regression were used to establish the relationships between the variables The study findings empirically revealed that employee involvement $r = 0.397$ work environment $r = 0.525$ remuneration $r = 0.389$ $p = 0.000$ and recognition $r = 0.362$ $p = 0.000$ have a positive significant relationship with job satisfaction The study concluded that quality of work life enhances job satisfaction Therefore the researcher recommended that Makerere University management should involve academics when developing or revising the goals and objectives of the institution through workshops so that suggestions of staff can form part of the development process thus enabling successful implementation Secondly Makerere University should focus create a conducive working environment with adequate and relevant educational facilities alongside improved working relations and friendly employee policy Thirdly Makerere University should enhance the remuneration e g fringe benefits bonus payments made to the academic staff in order to raise their job satisfaction levels

The Paris Framework for Climate Change Capacity

Building Mizan R Khan, J. Timmons Roberts, Saleemul Huq, Victoria Hoffmeister, 2018-04-09 The Paris Framework for Climate Change Capacity Building pioneers a new era of climate change governance performing the foundational job of clarifying what is meant by the often ad hoc one off uncoordinated ineffective and unsustainable practices of the past decade described as capacity building to address climate change As an alternative this book presents a framework on how to build effective and sustainable capacity systems to meaningfully tackle this long term problem Such a reframing of capacity building itself requires means of implementation The authors combine their decades long experiences in climate negotiations developing climate solutions climate activism and peer reviewed research to chart a realistic roadmap for the implementation of this alternative framework for capacity building As a result this book convincingly makes the case that universities as the highest and sustainable seats of learning and research in the developing countries should be the central hub of capacity building there This will be a valuable resource for students researchers and policy makers in the areas of climate change and environmental studies

Higher Education and Capacity Building in Africa

Hanne Kirstine Adriansen, Lene Møller Madsen, Stig Jensen, 2015-11-06 Higher education has recently been recognized as a key driver for societal growth in the Global South and capacity building of African universities is now widely included in donor policies The question is how do capacity building projects affect African universities researchers and students Universities and their scientific knowledges are often seen to have universal qualities therefore capacity building may appear straight forward Higher Education and Capacity Building in Africa contests such universalistic notions Inspired by ideas about the geography of scientific knowledge it explores what role specific places and relationships have in knowledge production and analyses how cultural experiences are included and excluded in teaching and research Thus the different chapters show how what constitutes legitimate scientific knowledge is negotiated and contested In doing so the chapters draw on discussions about the hegemony of Western thought in education and knowledge production The authors own experiences with higher education capacity building and knowledge production are discussed and used to contribute to the reflexive turn and rise of auto ethnography This book is a valuable resource for researchers and postgraduate students in education development studies African studies and human geography as well as anthropology and history
