Bloom,Donald A. Daiker,Edward Michael White,1997 The essays in this book stemming from a national conference of the same name focus on the single subject required of nearly all college students composition Despite its pervasiveness and its significance composition has an unstable status within the curriculum Writing programs and writing faculty are besieged by academic political and financial concerns that have not been well understood or addressed At many institutions composition functions paradoxically as both the gateway to academic success and as the gatekeeper reducing access to academic work and opportunity for those with limited facility in English Although writing programs are expected to provide services that range from instruction in correct grammar to assisting or resisting political correctness expanding programs and shrinking faculty get caught in the crossfire The bottom line becomes the firing line as forces outside the classroom determine funding and seek to define what composition should do In search of that definition the contributors ask and answer a series of specific and salient questions What implications intellectual political and institutional will forces outside the classroom have on the quality and delivery of composition in the twenty first century How will faculty and administrators identify and address these issues What policies and practices ought we propose for the century to come This book features sixteen position papers by distinguished scholars and researchers in composition and rhetoric most of the papers are followed by invited responses by other notable compositionists In all twenty five contributors approach composition from a wide variety of contemporary perspectives rhetorical historical social cultural political intellectual economic structural administrative and developmental They propose solutions applicable to pedagogy research graduate training of composition teachers academic administration and public and social policy In a very real sense then this is the only book to offer a map to the future of composition
