Anthropologies Of Cancer In Transnational Worlds Routledge Studies In Anthropology:

Anthropologies of Cancer in Transnational Worlds Holly F. Mathews, Nancy J. Burke, Eirini Kampriani, 2015-06-26
Cancer is a transnational condition involving the unprecedented flow of health information technologies and people across national borders. Such movement raises questions about the nature of therapeutic citizenship: how and where structurally vulnerable populations obtain care and the political geography of blame associated with this disease. This volume brings together cutting edge anthropological research carried out across North and South America, Europe, Africa, and Asia, representing low, middle, and high resource countries with a diversity of national health care systems. Contributors ethnographically map the varied nature of cancer experiences and articulate the multiplicity of meanings that survivorship, risk, charity, and care entail. They explore institutional frameworks shaping local responses to cancer and underlying political forces and structural variables. Negotiating Structural Vulnerability in Cancer Control Julie Armin, Nancy J. Burke, Eichelberger Laura, 2019-03-01
What can case studies about the lived experiences of cancer contribute to an interest in the concept of structural vulnerability? And can a consideration of structural vulnerability enhance applied anthropological work in cancer prevention and control? To answer these questions, the contributors in this volume explore what it means to be structurally vulnerable, how structural vulnerabilities intersect with cancer risk, diagnosis, care seeking, caregiving, clinical trial participation, and survivorship, and how differing local, national, and global political contexts and histories inform vulnerability. These case studies illustrate how quotidian experiences of structural vulnerability influence and are altered by a cancer diagnosis at various points in the continuum of care. In examining cancer as a set of diseases and biosocial phenomena, the contributors extend structural vulnerability beyond its original conceptualization to encompass spatiality, temporality, and biosocial shifts in both individual and institutional arrangements.

Cancer and the Politics of Care Linda Rae Bennett, Lenore Manderson, Belinda Spagnoletti, 2023-02-13
This timely volume responds to the epic impacts of cancer as a global phenomenon. Through the fine-grained lens of ethnography, the contributors present new thinking on how social, economic, race, gender, and other structural inequalities intersect, compound, and complicate health inequalities. Cancer experiences and impacts are explored across eleven countries: Argentina, Brazil, Denmark, France, Greece, India, Indonesia, Italy, Senegal, the United Kingdom, and the United States. The volume engages with specific cancers from the point of primary prevention to screening, diagnosis, treatment, or its absence, and end-of-life care. Cancer and the Politics of Care traverses new theoretical terrain through explicitly critiquing cancer interventions, their limitations, and success; the politics that drive them; and their embeddedness in local cultures and value systems. It extends prior work on cancer by incorporating the perspectives of patients and their families, at-risk groups, and communities, health professionals, cancer advocates and educators and patient navigators The volume advances cross cultural understandings of care resisting simple dichotomies between caregiving and receiving and reveals the fraught ethics of care that must be negotiated in resource poor settings and stratified health systems Its diversity and innovation ensures its wide utility among those working in and studying medical anthropology social anthropology and other fields at the intersections of social science medicine and health equity

Cancer Entangled Rikke Sand Andersen, Marie Louise Tørring, 2023-04-14 This book explores the shifts that took place in Denmark around the millennium when health promoters set out to minimize delays in cancer diagnoses in hope of improving cancer survival Through rich ethnographic cases on the first cancer vaccine cancer signs and symptoms social class and care seeking public discourses on delays cancer suspicion in the clinic and fast track referral the authors situate cancer control in an ethical registrar involving attention to acceleration and time

The Politics of Knowledge in the Biomedical Sciences Jonathan Jansen, Jess Auerbach, 2023-11-06 In the wake of the decolonization movement in South Africa and around the world this edited work presents fresh evidence and advances new arguments on the politics and economics of colonial biomedical knowledge in South Africa and other parts of the African continent Covering a richly diverse set of fields including human genetics obstetrics occupational therapy medical photography and the vaccine sciences the book demonstrates the troubled histories and the enduring effects of imperial knowledge decades since the end of colonial rule and apartheid This is a valuable text on the politics of the biomedical sciences written from the perspective of the African continent and at the same time it revisits knowledge power relationships between the majority global South and minority global north words in a historical perspective and in their contemporary expression in the disciplines The immediate benefit is a reference resource for medical science researchers and a teaching text for senior undergraduate and postgraduate students The book is further composed as an accessible readable and interesting text on politics and medicine in Africa for the discerning lay reader

Cancer Intersections Camilo Sanz, 2024 A free ebook version of this title is available through Luminos University of California Press's Open Access publishing program Visit www.luminosoa.org to learn more Cancer Intersections is an ethnographic analysis of the complex and paradoxical efforts to access neoliberal market based oncological treatments in Colombia a country where all patients are legally guaranteed access to medical services including high cost ones Drawing on years of fieldwork in the city of Cali Camilo Sanz explores the deep entanglements between medical legal and policy practices that share a common goal of treating and curing cancer but are hindered by bureaucratic procedures pernicious financial interests and class politics Cancer Intersections shows how the interplay of these hurdles dictates the rhythm at which patients access treatment and how even in resource rich settings patients suffer because of market imperatives that shape how cancer treatments unfold Through careful and measured observation Sanz unveils how a neoliberal universal health care regime delays access to care for those reliant on public assistance which means that some patients will start expensive treatments only after it is unlikely to change the course of the disease

Immobility and

Medicine Cecilia Vindrola-Padros, Bruno Vindrola-Padros, Kyle Lee-Crossett, 2020-10-02 Recent work in the mobilities literature has highlighted the importance of thinking about mobility and immobility as a continuum where movement intersects with processes that might entail episodes of transition waiting emptiness and fixity This focus on stillness things that are stuck incomplete or in a state of transition can point to new theoretical methodological and practical dimensions in social studies of medicine This edited volume brings the concept of immobility to the forefront of social studies of medicine to explore how immobility shapes processes of medical care and the theoretical and methodological challenges of studying immobility in medical contexts The authors in this volume draw from a wide range of case studies across the globe to make contributions to our current understanding of health illness and medicine mobilities and immobilities Chapter 2 Lists in Flux Lives on Hold Technologies of Waiting in Liver Transplant Medicine is available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License via link springer.com

The Work of Hospitals William C. Olsen, Carolyn Sargent, 2022-03-18 In the context of neoliberalism and global austerity measures health care institutions around the world confront numerous challenges in attempting to meet the needs of local populations Examples from Africa including Ethiopia Ghana and Congo Latin America Peru Mexico Guatemala Western Europe France Greece and the United States illustrate how hospitals play a significant role in the social production of health and disease in the communities where they are Many low resource countries have experienced increasing privatization and dysfunction of public sector institutions such as hospitals and growing withdrawal of funding for non profit organizations Underlying the chapters in The Work of Hospitals is a fundamental question how do hospitals function lacking the medications equipment and technologies and personnel normally assumed to be necessary This collection of ethnographies demonstrates how hospital administrators clinicians and other staff in hospitals around the world confront innumerable risks in their commitment to deliver health care including civil unrest widespread poverty endemic and epidemic disease and supply chain instability Ultimately The Work of Hospitals documents a vast gulf between the idealized mission of the hospital and the implementation of this mission in everyday practice Hospitals thus become contested space between policy and practice

The Anthropology of Postindustrialism Ismael Vaccaro, Krista Harper, Seth Murray, 2015-10-08 This volume explores how mechanisms of postindustrial capitalism affect places and people in peripheral regions and de industrializing cities While studies of globalization tend to emphasize localities newly connected to global systems this collection in contrast analyzes the disconnection of communities away from the market presenting a range of ethnographic case studies that scrutinize the framework of this transformative process analyzing new social formations that are emerging in the voids left behind by the de industrialization and introducing a discussion on the potential impacts of the current economic and ecological crises on the hyper mobile model that has characterized this recent phase of global capitalism and spatially uneven development
