organisations While this book is not intended as an instruction manual it hopes to ignite an understanding of the particular processes required to develop a sustainable and cohesive post conflict peacebuilding strategy within the African environment

Tradition and Change in Legal English Christopher Williams, 2007 In this volume the author examines verbal constructions in prescriptive legal texts written in English Modal auxiliaries such as shall may and must are analysed as well as indicative tenses such as the present simple and also non finite constructions such as the ing form and ed participles Results are based on specially compiled corpora of prescriptive texts coming from a wide range of English speaking countries and also international organizations such as the European Union and the UN The author also analyses the nature extent and impact of the calls for change in legal language coming from the Plain Language Movement Although legal language tends to be depicted as being highly conservative and unchanging the author shows that in certain parts of the English speaking world a minor revolution would appear to be taking place while in other parts there is greater resistance to change
