Feeling lives: An intersectional exploration of past experiences and present living Lindsay Clowes,LJ Theo,Nadia Sanger,Landa Mabenge,Sisa Ngabaza,2023-11-15 We each make sense of the world through our embodied feeling lives We do it through the social groupings contexts and processes which history rather than biology presents and assigns to us In this collection we aim to illustrate how these embodied feelings and emotions underpin contemporary theorising by sharing reflective autobiographical writing by individuals from a wide range of backgrounds and contexts This somewhat unruly collection unsettles conventional academic writing precisely because authors have grounded themselves in the tangible and the personal rather than in abstract theory We hope that readers might see aspects of their own lives in some of these stories develop better understandings of lives that are experienced very differently and start or continue to theorise their own lives

Doobay-Persaud,Tracy L. Rabin,Tomlin Paul,Jessica Evert ,Benedicta Ayiedu Mensah,2024-10-01 Global Health a field of study research and practice defined in 2009 with precursors in international health and development is currently reckoning with itself The field has well intended goals emphasizing collaboration and dialogue between population health public health clinical care and other disciplines to address socioeconomic determinants of health and employing interdisciplinary approaches to address health inequities wherever they exist Despite these lofty ideals there are concerns that the field itself has historically served to reinforce rather than deconstruct colonialism and power imbalances At this point in time the field has evolved toward a vision of a community of practice between institutions across the income spectrum HIC LMIC LIC working in bidirectional and multidirectional ways to develop staff staff space systems and strategies to eliminate health disparities However with deeply rooted colonial assumptions racism elitism and other forms of bias underlying institutions and individuals initiatives operating under the auspices of Global Health are all too often antithetical to the pursuit itself      The Bloomsbury Handbook of Diversity,

Universities as Political Institutions Leasa Weimer, Terhi Nokkala, 2020-04-06 Universities can be viewed and studied as political institutions especially considering that they sit at the crossroads of social cultural and economic pressures. The internal and external environment of higher education brings with it multiple and complex relationships as well as power struggles. Within these contested political spaces there are phenomena to be studied. While the field of higher education draws from a multitude of disciplines some scholars argue that only recently has scholarship focused on the political perspectives of higher education. To better understand the politics and policies of higher education Universities as Political Institutions illuminates a variety of ways that researchers view and study universities as a political institution from considering the national and international political pressures shaping higher education to the analysis of responses and political action from within the ivory tower. The 2017 annual CHER conference in Jyväskylä Finland brought together 213 scholars from 30 countries. This book includes a selection of papers and keynote presentations from this conference. The thematic approach of the book reflects the 2017 conference theme Universities as Political Institutions: Higher Education Institutions in the Middle of Academic Economic and Social Pressures. The theme focused on multiple and often complex relations and relationships internal and external to higher education institutions. In this context political refers not only to definitions uses and users of power but more broadly to a variety of relationships among different actors and agencies responsible for making executing or resisting decisions concerning higher education institutions.

Yet EHDI remains a significant challenge.

for Africa and various initiatives are in place to address this gap in transferring policy into practice within the southern African context. The diversity of factors in the southern African context presents unique challenges to teaching and research in this field which has prompted this book project. The South African government's heightened focus on increasing access to health care which includes ongoing Early Childhood Development (ECD) programs make this an opportune time for establishing and documenting evidence-based research for current undergraduate and postgraduate students. Early Detection and Intervention in Audiology: An African Perspective aims to address this opportunity. Grounded in an African context with detailed case studies, this book provides rich content that pays careful attention to contextual relevance and contextual responsiveness to both identification and intervention in hearing impairment. With diverse contributions from experts in local and international contexts but always with an African perspective, this textbook will be an invaluable resource for students, researchers, and practitioners.

It also presents a case study on a leading manufacturing subsector, the automotive industry. The book then offers a set of analyses concerning the country's trade sector, including exchange rate policies, ways to connect to global markets, and accession to the World Trade Organization. In turn, the closing chapters investigate various aspects of Iran's labor market and offer policy recommendations on the creation of productive jobs. Readers will learn about effective industrial trade and employment policies that can complement macroeconomic measures adopted by the government. As such, the book will appeal not only to scholars and policy makers but also to international investors seeking to understand various core aspects of Iran's industrial and employment structures and trade regime.
