10 Multiple Choice Questions About The Holocaust:

Visitor Experience at Holocaust Memorials and Museums Diana I. Popescu, 2022-11-29 Visitor Experience at Holocaust Memorials and Museums is the first volume to offer comprehensive insights into visitor reactions to a wide range of museum exhibitions, memorials and memory sites. Drawing exclusively upon empirical research, chapters within the book offer critical insights about visitor experience at museums and memory sites in the United States, Poland, Austria, Germany, France, the UK, Norway, Hungary, Australia and Israel. The contributions to the volume explore visitor experience in all its complexity and argue that visitors are more than just learners. Approaching visitor experience as a multidimensional phenomenon, the book positions visitor experience within a diverse national, ethnic, cultural, social and generational context. It also considers the impact of museums' curatorial and design choices, visitor motivations and expectations, and the crucial role emotions play in shaping understanding of historical events and subjects. By approaching visitors as active interpreters of memory spaces and museum exhibitions, Popescu and the contributing authors provide a much needed insight into the different ways in which members of the public act as agents of memory, endowing this history with personal and collective meaning and relevance. Visitor Experience at Holocaust Memorials and Museums offers significant insights into audience motivation, expectation and behaviour. It is essential reading for academics, postgraduate students and practitioners with an interest in museums and heritage, visitor studies, Holocaust and genocide studies, and tourism.

Teaching the Holocaust in School History Lucy Russell, 2006-08-17 If we expose students to a study of human suffering, we have a responsibility to guide them through it. But is this the role of school history? This issue is the rationale behind teaching the Holocaust: primarily historical, moral or social? Is the Holocaust to be taught as a historical event with a view to developing students' critical historical skills, or as a tool to combat continuing prejudice and discrimination? These profound questions lie at the heart of Lucy Russell's fascinating analysis of teaching the Holocaust in school history. She considers how the topic of the Holocaust is currently being taught in schools in the UK and overseas. Drawing on interviews with educationalists, academics and teachers, she discovers that there is in fact a surprising lack of consensus regarding the purpose of and approaches to teaching the Holocaust in history. Indeed, the majority view is distinctly non-historical; there is a tendency to teach the Holocaust from a social and moral perspective and not as history. This book attempts to explain and debate this phenomenon.

Teaching Statistics Andrew Gelman, Deborah Nolan, 2002-08-08 Students in the sciences, economics, psychology, social sciences, and medicine take introductory statistics. Statistics is increasingly offered at the high school level as well. However, statistics can be notoriously difficult to teach, as it is seen by many students as difficult and boring, if not irrelevant to their subject of choice. To help dispel these misconceptions, Gelman and Nolan have put together this fascinating and thought-provoking book. Based on years of teaching experience, the book provides a wealth of demonstrations, examples, and projects that involve active student participation. Part I of the book presents a large selection of activities for introductory statistics courses and combines chapters such as First week of class with exercises to break the ice and get students talking. Then Descriptive statistics, collecting and displaying data, then follows the traditional topics: linear regression, data collection, probability and inference Part II gives tips on what does and what doesn't work in class how to set up effective demonstrations and examples how to encourage students to participate in class and work effectively in group projects A sample course plan is provided Part III presents material for more advanced courses on topics such as decision theory Bayesian statistics and sampling
