Points, Lines, and Planes

Points, Lines, and Planes are the basic building blocks of geometry. A point is a location in space, and a line is a straight path that extends infinitely in both directions. A plane is a flat surface that extends infinitely in all directions.

Example: Drawing a line is like drawing a straight path.

- a. A line containing points A and B. (This line contains points A and B, and all other points on the line.)
- b. A line containing points A and B. (This line contains points A and B, and all other points on the line.)
- c. A line containing points A and B. (This line contains points A and B, and all other points on the line.)
- d. A line containing points A and B. (This line contains points A and B, and all other points on the line.)
