Community Economic Development Graham Haughton, 2013-12-16 This important book examines the ways in which community economic development can contribute to local and regional regeneration. It presents a unique overview of the state of contemporary British practice in this important policy area and provides a series of fresh theoretical, methodological and empirical insights which help us to understand ways in which communities are facing up to the challenges of devising and bringing about their own revitalisation. Community Economic Development is underpinned by the argument that much conventional regeneration work represents at best a short term fix rather than a long term sustainable solution to the problems of socially excluded communities. The emphasis of the book is largely on the British experience with contributions from a rich mix of new and established academics and practitioners. 21st Century Cooperation Antoni Estevadeordal, Louis Goodman, 2017-05-18 This edited volume explains the importance of regional public goods (RPGs) for sustainable development and shows why they are particularly important in the context of 21st century international relations. By presenting a new and original data set and by presenting original essays by renowned scholars, this book lays the foundation for what will become an increasingly important focus for both economic development and international relations as well as for their intersection. The volume contains four parts. The first introduces the core issues and concepts that are explored throughout the book as well as a new and original data set on RPGs. The second part further develops specific concepts important for understanding 21st century RPGs: regional leadership, alliances, networks and outcomes. The third examines how cooperation takes place worldwide for a range of important RPGs. Finally, the fourth part discusses how public goods are produced in specific regions, stressing that each region has a distinct context and that these contexts overlap in a decentered, multiplex manner. Global economic cooperation will be different in the 21st century and this volume will be of interest to students and scholars of global governance, economic development, international political economy, sustainable development and comparative regionalism. Integrating Human Health into Urban and Transport Planning Mark Nieuwenhuijsen, Haneen Khreis, 2018-07-13 This volume brings together the world's leading experts on urban and transport planning, environmental exposures, physical activity, health and health impact assessment to discuss challenges and solutions in cities. The book provides a conceptual framework and work program for actions and outlines future research needs. It presents the current evidence base, the benefits of and numerous case studies on integrating health and the environment into urban development and transport planning. Within cities, there is a considerable variation in the levels of environmental exposures such as ambient air pollution, noise and temperature, green space availability and physical activity. Many of these exposures and their adverse health impacts are related to and are being exacerbated by urban and transport planning and policy. Emerging research suggests that urban and transport planning indicators such as road network distance to major roads, traffic density, household density, industry and natural and green space can explain a large proportion of the variability in environmental exposures and therefore represent important and highly modifiable factors The urban environment is a complex interlinked system Decision makers need not only better data on the complexity of factors in environmental and developmental processes affecting human health but also an enhanced understanding of the linkages between these factors and health effects to determine at which level to target their actions most effectively In recent years there also has been a shift from trying to change at the national level to more comprehensive and ambitious actions being developed and implemented at the regional and local levels Cities have come to the forefront of providing solutions for environmental issues such as climate change which has co benefits for health but yet need better knowledge for wider health centric action This book provides the latest and most up to date information and studies for academics and practitioners alike

The European Commission and the Integration of Europe Liesbet Hooghe, 2001 What kind of European Union do top Commission officials want Should the European Union be supranational or intergovernmental Should it promote market liberalism or regulated capitalism Should the Commission be Europe's government or its civil service This 2002 book examines top officials preferences on these questions through analysis of unique data from 137 interviews Understanding the forces that shape human preferences is the subject of intense debate Hooghe demonstrates that the Commission has difficulty shaping its employees preferences in the fluid multi institutional context of the European Union Top officials preferences are better explained by experiences outside rather than inside the Commission political party country and prior work leave deeper imprints than directorate general or cabinet Preferences are also influenced more by internalized values than by self interested career calculation Hooghe's findings are surprising and will challenge a number of common assumptions about the workings and motives of the European Commission

European Regional Growth Bernard Fingleton, 2013-06-29 Looking into the future and trying to visualize long run regional disparities is difficult There is no agreed single theory to guide our model building although some insight can be gained from analysis of the past and by looking at the different theoretical positions to see if there is any agreement at least in terms of outcome if not in terms of mechanism This is what is attempted in this book which brings together specialists with a common interest in European regional growth and in applying quantitative analytical and simulation techniques in order to provide different perspectives on the topic Many of the Chapters in the book employ the methods of spatial econometrics Spatial econometrics is a suite of statistical and econometric tools dedicated to the analysis of spatial data in other words data that is set within the context of socio economic theories and which can be represented most informatively in mapped form These methods have emerged over the last half century from a series of influential papers and books in the fields of regional science spatial statistics and quantitative geography and are ripe for serious application in the context of the EU's development In particular they provide the means by which to analyze spatially indexed data where the time dimension is essentially suppressed because for instance the variables of interest are not available or are of questionable accuracy which is often the case when one is interested in regional rather than national variations across a number of countries

Joenniemi, Lars Hedegaard, A. Östhol, Bjarne Lindström, K. Peschel, C.-E. Stalvant, 2013-03-09 Thorvald Stoltenberg President of the Norwegian Red Cross Chairman of the Editorial Advisory Board Despite the very optimistic language on the imminence of new accessions to the European Union that came out of the June 2001 European Council in Gothenburg it will serve no good purpose to neglect the fact that EU membership for the Central and Eastern European applicants remains a difficult process Painful experience makes it prudent to exercise caution in predicting developments within the European Union Negotiations may drag out snags may appear and something may happen on the way to ratification So perhaps it is wise to take a broader view of European integration and therefore integration within the North European Barents and Baltic Sea region that is the focus of this Yearbook EU membership for those countries that are able to satisfy the Copenhagen requirements and the chapters of the acquis communautaire that have subsequently been specified is certainly a prize worth fighting for But all is not lost if some of the applicants end up not joining the Union as a result of the current enlargement round Even more important than formal membership is the process of growing together that has taken place simultaneously with the membership negotiations We are dealing here with integration in the real world of trade investments division of labour politics environment hard and soft security people to people relations etc Back To Europe Karen Henderson, 2005-10-09 As The European Union Opens Negotiations On Membership With Five Of The Ten post communist states who have applied this book looks at some of the challenges presented by Eastern enlargement not only to existing member states and European institutions but also to the Central and Eastern European countries themselves The approach is interdisciplinary and brings together contributions from academic specialists on security and international relations European institutions the economics of European integration and the domestic politics of Central and Eastern Europe The book has been structured to provide a clear and comprehensive introduction to the topic for students taking a range of courses including European integration the politics of post communist democracies and Europe s post Cold war order At the same time it will be accessible to more general readers with an interest in European Union affairs while presenting research to specialists in the area Advancing Quality of Life in a Turbulent World Richard J. Estes, 2007-01-07 Economically advanced nations have made significant progress toward meeting the basic needs of their populations the majority of developing countries have not The thirteen papers in this volume explore a broad range of factors that impact on quality of life worldwide globalization regionalization recently regained political autonomy migration health and illness food and agriculture the family and the contribution of faith and spirituality in advancing personal and collective well being in a turbulent world The Development Dimension Coherence of Agricultural and Rural Development Policies OECD, 2006-06-08 At a time when agriculture is no longer the dominant sector in rural economies in OECD countries this study examines the advantages of developing coherence between agricultural and rural development policies European Integration and Housing Policy Mark Kleinman, Walter Matznetter, Mark Stephens, 2005-07-28 This book presents a series of debates arising from the housing needs of different EU countries The authors address key issues by examining in turn the consequences of European integration for different housing markets the impact of the Maastricht Treaty and other policy documents the social consequences of integration including income distribution homelessness and marginal housing estates current housing policy in the Nordic countries and in Eastern Europe
