Conflicted Power in Malawian Christianity Fiedler, Klaus, 2015-12-01 The volume constitutes Klaus Fiedler's crowning contribution to scholarship Essays in the first half of the book focus on Malawian Christianity and how contrasting Powers Gospel and Secular engage each other creating social political and cultural conflict in the process In the second half Fiedler examines general missiological themes These essays provide a broader missiological background offering a theoretical framework necessary for appreciating the essays in the first half He concludes with a chapter that reviews selected seminal books on themes under study Throughout the volume Fiedler applies the restorationist revival theory he constructed in The Story of Faith Missions an earlier 1994 work putting emphasis on non classical missions and churches not systematically covered in earlier scholarship This volume the first of its kind on Malawian Christianity will long remain an indispensable text for those interested in Missiology and Malawian Christianity

Lunjika SDA Mission in Northern Malawi 1932 - 1995 Banda, Macleard, 2018-05-22 The missionary work of the Seventh day Adventist Church started in Southern Malawi in 1902 and histories of churches are usually told from that starting point This book uses a different approach it tells the story of Lunjika Mission earlier called Mombera Mission which begins in 1932 showing how the SDA Church met a new culture that of the strongly patrilineal Ngoni and their neighbours to the North and how it dealt with other churches that had started missionary work in that broad area up to two generations before

Micronutrient policy process in Malawi Babu, Suresh Chandra, Haggblade, Steven, Mkandawire, Elizabeth, Nankhuni, Flora, Hendriks, Sheryl L., 2016-11-14 Micronutrient deficiencies are common across the developing world and have major effects on the health outcomes of its population Although this is well understood many countries find it difficult to bring about policy change in this regard This paper uses micronutrient policies designed and implemented in Malawi as a case study to shed light on the barriers and gaps faced by developing countries for similar programs and policies To understand the drivers of policy change this paper uses the kaleidoscope model to trace the policy processes of three major micronutrients iodine vitamin A and iron Using a select set of policy process tools as well as field interviews with key informants who were part of Malawi's micronutrient policy process the authors test a set of hypotheses on 16 variables that drive policy change in the micronutrient policy sphere Results indicate that much of the agenda setting for micronutrient policies and programs was triggered by external events that focused on the elimination of micronutrient deficiencies as part of the global development agenda These events include the International Conference on Nutrition the Millennium Development Goals and more recently Scaling up Nutrition The design of micronutrient policies and program interventions in Malawi was adopted by locally mandated ministries and institutions in collaboration with development partners who provided both financial and technical support at the design stage The adoption of micronutrient policies and intervention programs was driven primarily by external funding particularly through supplementation programs related to vitamin A and iron Adoption of fortification standards for vitamin A has been going on for more than a decade due to continuous resistance from the private sector which faces additional costs and needs greater technical expertise The biofortification method of micronutrient interventions for iron and vitamin A is externally driven and relatively new in Malawi Although this method is widely accepted by policy makers no concrete strategy has been developed for its design adoption and implementation Further supplementation and fortification programs continue to face implementation challenges due to poor physical infrastructure and monitoring systems However the national institutional architecture required for agenda setting design adoption implementation evaluation and review to address micronutrient deficiencies is in place in Malawi The system needs continued support from development partners for effective functioning at all levels The use of various tools for the policy change part of the kaleidoscope model indicate that policy change is a dynamic process over time changes in the nature and composition of the members of policy and institutional architecture can result in different policy outcomes The Malawi case study demonstrates two things First local leadership is crucial in keeping micronutrient deficiencies on the policy making agenda and second it matters where coordinating power is placed in the policy hierarchy This paper finds that even with policy champions adopted policies will face implementation challenges unless they are supported with adequate resources and are systematically followed through to final execution and delivery

Targeting hunger or votes? The political economy of humanitarian transfers in Malawi Duchoslav, Jan, Kenamu, Edwin, Thunde, Jack, 2022-10-07 Do electoral considerations play a role in the targeting of humanitarian transfers We analyze the targeting of direct cash and food transfers distributed in Malawi in response to an exceptionally poor harvest following a late and erratic rainy season of 2015 16 Combining household survey data on transfers with a remotely sensed measure of drought and with the results of the 2014 and 2019 parliamentary elections we show that transfers were disproportionately targeted at marginal constituencies Rather than distributing the transfers based solely on need or mobilizing its tribal base the government attempted to persuade swing voters to support its candidates in the next elections We find no evidence that this strategy was successful at increasing the vote of ruling party candidates in subsequent elections
