This book presents a pioneering longitudinal study on English language instruction at the elementary school ELES level in the Japanese public school system. It attempts to identify those domains most sensitive to early English instruction by employing a state of the art quantitative research methodology. English education was formally introduced in Japan for fifth and sixth graders in 2011 and is still in its infancy as a program. This study compares two groups: Grade 7 and 8 of students, one with ELES and one without, in order to shed light on their experiences. Comparisons are carried out not only quantitatively measuring changes in English skills (listening, speaking, reading, and vocabulary grammar) and the ELES students' affective aspects but also qualitatively through in-depth interviews. Thus, this study attempts to capture the ELES students' experiences from a multi-dimensional perspective. The comprehensive literature review provided offers a valuable resource not only for researchers looking for a quick digest of the literature in this field before undertaking their own research but also for policy makers seeking to assess how to best implement ELES.

Promoting Climate Change Awareness through Environmental Education Wilson, Lynn, Stevenson, Carolyn, 2015-09-22 Addressing global climate change is a monumental battle that can only be fought by the leaders of tomorrow but future leaders are molded through education and shaped by the leaders of today. While the pivotal role of education in spreading awareness of climate change is one universally espoused, equally universal is the recognition that current education efforts are falling woefully short. Promoting Climate Change Awareness through Environmental Education stems the rising tide of shortcomings in environmental education by plugging a known gap in current research and opening a dialogue for the future. Targeting an audience of young scholars, academics, researchers, and policymakers, this volume provides a much needed dam of empirical evidence regarding the role of youth education in addressing one of the greatest challenges of our age. This timely publication focuses on topics such as building resilience to climate change, green learning spaces, gender issues, and concerns for developing countries and the impact of young adults on the future of environmental sustainability.

Conflict Resolution in De Facto States Sebastian Relitz, 2022-07-22 This book explores the challenges of conflict resolution in protracted conflicts and conceptualises and analyses the practice of engagement without recognition in de facto states.
