

CHAPTER 23

I. Origins of the Cold War

The Two Powers

❖ US emerged from WWI as world's greatest power with most powerful navy and airforce, and they had the atomic bomb

- FDR's admin had been determined to avoid isolationism, believed US could lead the world to cooperation
- United Nations and World Bank had been created to promote these goals

❖ Only country that could rival was the Soviet Union- they had occupied most of eastern europe including east germany

- Like the US, the USSR looked forward to a world modeled on their values and society

The Roots of Containment

❖ Became inevitable that the two major powers to emerge from WWII would come into conflict

- "Born of a common foe rather than common long-term interests, values, or history, their wartime alliance began to unravel almost from the day that peace was declared."

❖ At end of WWII, Soviet troops occupied parts of northern Iran to try to get access to the oil fields, US and GB were like no

❖ At the same time the Soviets established pro-communist govts in Poland, Romania, Bulgaria

❖ 1946 Long Telegram from Moscow, American diplomat George Kennan

The Iron Curtain

❖ Former GB prime minister Churchill said that and "iron curtain" split free west from communist east in europe

The Truman Doctrine (like monroe doctrine, but on a world tour)

❖ Forced into making foreign policy decisions, Truman decided to put the policy of containment into effect

- 1947- GB couldn't afford its traditional international role bc its shattered war econ, had to end military and financial aid to Greece and Turkey

❖ Truman used defense of freedom to rally support- as a leader of the "free world" US must help "freedom loving people"

when communism threatened them

- Truman managed to convince both dems and repubs in congress of his policy
- Began long period of bipartisan support of containment of communism

❖ US now had a permanent global responsibility

- "There soon followed the creation of new national security bodies immune from democratic oversight, such as the Atomic Energy Commission, National Security Council, and Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), the last established in 1947 to gather intelligence and conduct secret military operations abroad."
