

Closing Ceremony Speech - SGS MUN 2019

We were all here this weekend to represent our countries, push ourselves in debate, and pass good resolutions. But although our success in these things is important to us, I would like to take a few minutes to talk about, not success, but failure.

Having participated in our discussions, we should remember that there is no such thing as an overnight success; it's a fallacy, a myth pedalled in a world where someone may be virally catapulted to fame as an internet phenomenon in a matter of 24 hours. What I would like us to dwell on as this weekend is drawing to a close, is the work, the process that takes us towards success, towards our goals. That process sometimes includes failure. Not winning an award, but focusing on learning and improving.

There was once a lady in a market place, she saw Picasso and asked him for a self-portrait. He agreed...and drew a perfect picture in 30 seconds. He then handed it back to her and asked for $30,000. She questioned how it could cost that much when it only took him 30 seconds. He replied, "It took me 30 years to be able draw that in 30 seconds".

It's amazing how - so often - the time taken to achieve success is forgotten; how frequently we forget what lies beyond the tip of the iceberg, the shadowy section underneath the water. But that part, the part we don't see, the part full of failure, learning and progress, is absolutely what makes success possible. If we have experienced that success today, it is because we have invested time, valued experience and learned from our mistakes and failures.

When you look at the definition of failure in the dictionary, it is defined by three words: lack of success. If we fear failure and imperfection, it ultimately means that we don't value growth and learning, it means we don't value experience and struggle, and our obsession with winning means that we're actually letting go of what we could be learning at every single point. So I hope that this weekend you have been brave and courageous in your discussions, have not be afraid to express your views. To those of you who did not win awards today, keep trying. There are always more conferences to get involved in. Learn from your mistakes, whether it is improving your public speaking skills, spending more time researching issues or gaining confidence in the committee room. Being open to improvement is important.

Linguistic Biomarkers of Neurological, Cognitive, and Psychiatric Disorders: Verification, Analytical Validation, Clinical Validation, and Machine Learning Ratree Wayland, Si Chen, Kevin Tang, 2024-08-07 Degeneration of nerve cells that control cognitive speech and language processes leading to linguistic impairments at various levels from verbal utterances to individual speech sounds could indicate signs of neurological cognitive and psychiatric disorders such as Alzheimer's disease AD Parkinson's disease PD amyotrophic lateral sclerosis ALS dementias depression autism spectrum disorder schizophrenia etc Currently these disorders are diagnosed using specific clinical diagnostic criteria and neuropsychological examinations However speech based biomarkers could potentially offer many advantages over current clinical standards In addition to being objective and naturalistic they can also be collected remotely with minimal instruction and time requirements Furthermore Machine Learning algorithms developed to build automated diagnostic models using linguistic features extracted from speech could aid diagnosis of patients with probable diseases from a group of normal population To ensure that speech based biomarkers are providing accurate measurement and can serve as effective clinical tools for detecting and monitoring disease speech features extracted and analyzed must be systematically and rigorously evaluated Different machine learning architectures trained to classify different types of disordered speech must also be rigorously tested and systematically compared

VoIP is an essential guide to assessing the speech quality of VoIP networks whilst addressing the implications for the design of VoIP networks and systems This book bridges the gap between the technical network world and the psychoacoustic world of quality perception Alexander Raake s unique perspective combines awareness of the technical characteristics of VoIP networks and original research concerning the perception of speech transmitted across them Starting from the network designer s point of view the different characteristics of the network are addressed and then linked to features perceived by users This book provides an overview of the available knowledge on the principal relevant aspects of speech and speech quality perception of speech quality assessment and of transmission properties of telephone and VoIP networks and of the related perceptual features and resulting speech quality Discussing new research into the specific time varying degradations VoIP brings along but also the considerable potential of quality improvement to be achieved with wideband speech transmission Alexander Raake demonstrates how network and service characteristics impact on the users perception of quality Speech Quality of VoIP Offers an insight into speech quality of VoIP from a user s perspective Presents an overview of different modelling approaches and a parametric network planning model for quality prediction in VoIP networks Draws on innovative new research on the quality degradation characteristic of VoIP Explains in detail how telephone speech quality can be greatly enhanced with VoIP s wideband speech transmission capability Assesses the vast collection of references into the technical and scientific literature related to VoIP quality Illustrates concepts throughout with mathematical models algorithms and simulations Speech Quality of VoIP is the definitive guide for researchers engineers and network planners working in the field of VoIP Quality of Service and speech communication processing in telecommunications Advanced undergraduate and graduate students on telecommunication and networking courses will also find this text an invaluable resource

Stuttering Joseph S. Kalinowski, Tim Saltuklaroglu, 2005-11 This textbook presents a new paradigm for understanding the nature and treatment of stuttering based on recent discoveries in neuroscience The authors illustrate how visible stuttering manifestations are actually a solution to a central problem acting as a compensatory mechanism for a central involuntary block rather than a problem in themselves This book features methods that reduce stuttering by inhibiting this central block through the use of sensory and motor tools notably mirror neurons and shows readers that stuttering is not a condition that can be effortlessly trained out of the system or eliminated via simple speech retraining

How and Why Does Spatial-Hearing Ability Differ among Listeners? What Is the Role of Learning and Multisensory Interactions? Guillaume Andéol, Brian D. Simpson, Ewan A. Macpherson, 2016-08-29 Spatial hearing ability has been found to vary widely across listeners A survey of the existing auditory space perception literature suggests that three main types of factors may account for this variability physical factors e g acoustical characteristics related to sound localization cues perceptual factors e g sensory cognitive processing perceptual learning multisensory interactions and methodological factors e g differences in stimulus presentation methods across studies However the extent to which these and perhaps other still unidentified factors actually contribute to the observed variability in spatial hearing across individuals with normal hearing or within special populations e g hearing impaired listeners remains largely unknown Likewise the role of perceptual learning and multisensory interactions in the emergence of a multimodal but unified representation of auditory space is still an active topic of research A better characterization and understanding of the determinants of inter individual variability in spatial hearing and of its relationship with perceptual learning and multisensory interactions would have numerous benefits In particular it would enhance the design of rehabilitative devices and of human machine interfaces involving auditory or multimodal space perception such as virtual auditory multimodal displays in aeronautics or navigational aids for the visually impaired For this Research Topic we have considered manuscripts that present new methods or review existing methods for the study of inter individual differences present new data or review existing data concerning acoustical features relevant for explaining inter individual differences in sound localization performance present new or review existing psychophysical or neurophysiological findings concerning spatial hearing and or auditory perceptual learning and or multisensory interactions in humans normal or impaired young or older listeners or other species discuss the influence of inter individual differences on the design and use of assistive listening devices rehabilitation or human machine interfaces involving spatial hearing or multimodal perception of space ergonomics
