Ecological Statistics Gordon A. Fox, Simoneta Negrete-Yankelevich, Vinicio J. Sosa, 2015. The application and interpretation of statistics are central to ecological study and practice. Ecologists are now asking more sophisticated questions than in the past. These new questions, together with the continued growth of computing power and the availability of new software, have created a new generation of statistical techniques. These have resulted in major recent developments in both our understanding and practice of ecological statistics. This novel book synthesizes a number of these changes, addressing key approaches and issues that tend to be overlooked in other books, such as missing censored data, correlation structure of data, heterogeneous data, and complex causal relationships. These issues characterize a large proportion of ecological data, but most ecologists' training in traditional statistics simply does not provide them with adequate preparation to handle the associated challenges. Uniquely Ecological Statistics highlights the underlying links among many statistical approaches that attempt to tackle these issues. In particular, it gives readers an introduction to approaches to inference, likelihoods, generalized linear mixed models, spatially or phylogenetically structured data, and data synthesis with a strong emphasis on conceptual understanding and subsequent application to data analysis. Written by a team of practicing ecologists, mathematical explanations have been kept to the minimum necessary. This user-friendly textbook will be suitable for graduate students, researchers, and practitioners in the fields of ecology, evolution, environmental studies, and computational biology who are interested in updating their statistical tool kits. A companion web site provides example data sets and commented code in the R language.

New sections address Power and sample size determination for two-sample Z tests of proportions. Clinical equivalence and noninferiority studies, process capability, and tolerance limits. Methods for assessing repeatability and reproducibility. Expanded information includes Chi-square, repeated measures designs, Latin Square designs, nine multiple comparison tests, and outlier testing. Inverse prediction with linear regression, handling of multiple data points at different levels of independent variable, and assessment of parallelism of slopes for two samples. Additional types of bivariate correlations and various assessments for independence and randomness. More nonparametric tests including new information on post hoc comparisons for a significant Kruskal-Wallis test, the Kolmogorov-Smirnov goodness of fit test, and the Anderson-Darling test, as well as runs and range tests. Eight new tables useful for the interpretation of some of the new inferential statistics.
