

Short Answer Questions

Question 1

Organizations pursuing change take the business environment into account as they seek to achieve effective business performance. But is being aware of, reacting to, and responding to the business environment necessary?

- a. It is because organizations are important stakeholders. Owners is often the chief, and not other stakeholders. The business must be continuously reorganized to continuously react and to change structure to change new conditions, and change the "new market" environment continuously.
- b. It is because not responding to the business environment means not reacting to change and not responding to change. This is particularly true in global markets, where the business environment is constantly changing.
- c. The business environment is based on relationships with suppliers, clients, and other stakeholders. The business environment and organization are the business and a market organization.
