

The Evolution of American Immigration Policy

Immigration has always been a hot topic of discussion in the United States. For instance, the people who enter the US whether on Migrant or Non- immigrant status has raised heated debate now. Politicians and other state bodies try to negotiate on better policies possible to address the issue affecting more than 11.3 million people undocumented and currently residing in the United States. Migrant status encompasses those individuals who enter the United States on Temporary basis mainly for tourism, business study or other necessary activities (Joppke, 1998). On the other hand, nonimmigrant status is restricted only to the activities they apply for entry. Researchers argue that the issue of immigrants has cost many resources to the government while some of them argue for better policy formulation to curb the situation.

This research essay explores scholarly documents and immigrant articles that have been written to provide the best policies and strategies for dealing with immigration issues. The research will also explore books that discuss immigration issue in the US and its evolution. These sources will provide a synthesis of the literature on the problem of immigration. Moreover, the paper outlines how the United States' original ideas on immigration have evolved into the current state strategies and believe. For instance, the existing immigration policies need to be reformed for State governments to accommodate immigration regardless of the strict procedures imposed on immigrants based on their origin and religious beliefs.

The United States has been experiencing major waves of immigration since the colonial era. Research shows that highest number of immigrants in the first part of the 19th century came to America purposely to seek for greater economic opportunities at the time of increased economic crisis. The study shows that America has been a country of great immigrants at the times between the 1880s and 1920s; the original inhabitants to get to America crossed the land bridge connecting North America and Asia in early centuries. During this time, the first immigrant groups from Europe led by French and Spanish began to establish their settlements in the United States.

Likewise, in 1607, England made their permanent settlements in America in Virginia colony at Jamestown. The first American migrants in 1600s were pilgrims who arrived in search of religious freedom. These migrants came to the US in search of freedom of faith and

Immigration Policy in the USA Markus Rachbauer, 2008-06-30 Essay from the year 2007 in the subject Politics Region USA grade 3 University of Salzburg Institut für Geschichte und Politikwissenschaft language English abstract My essay will be about the immigration policy of the United States of America The U S administration has tightened measures against illegal immigration to the USA since the 1980s Especially the immigration of unskilled workers should be avoided As we will see the U S administration struggles with lacking reform in immigration policy that's why a conflict between the federal and state level exists Especially since the terrorist attacks of 11th of September 2001 the immigration policy has dramatically been changed Now security issues have become the most important topic Already existing bilateral relations between the USA and countries of origin of immigrants have also been affected The first chapter of this essay will be about the changes in immigration policy since the 1980s I will try to describe the most important new anti immigrant laws Furthermore I will show the reasons for these legal changes In the second chapter I will write about general reasons for changes in immigration policy in the United States and the meaning of the incidents of September 2001 The third chapter will be about the interest groups which are important in immigration policy I will try to show how immigration policy is influenced and by whom My hypothesis for this essay is that U S immigration has changed at the latest since the beginning of the 1990s the level of education of the immigrants got more important because of economic reasons Since the terror attacks in 2001 immigration is restricted because of safety reasons

Making and Remaking America: Immigration into the United States , During the 1980s and 1990s the U S Congress responded to growing gaps between immigration policy and immigration reality by making major changes in immigration laws and their administration In 1986 the United States enacted the world's largest legalization program for unauthorized foreigners and introduced sanctions on employers who knowingly hired illegal foreign workers Instead of slowing illegal immigration however this program allowed more foreigners to arrive legally and illegally which prompted another round of reforms in 1996 aimed at ensuring that new arrivals would not receive welfare payments On September 11 2001 foreigners in the United States hijacked four commercial planes Two were flown into the World Trade Center towers in New York City bringing them down and killing 3 000 people President George W Bush declared war on terrorists and the countries that harbor them and Congress enacted legislation to fight terrorism This includes new measures for tightening procedures for issuing visas to foreign visitors tracking foreign students and visitors while they are in the United States and giving immigration authorities new power to arrest and detain foreigners suspected of ties to terrorism The Immigration and Naturalization Service was abolished and its functions of preventing illegal immigration and providing services to foreign visitors and immigrants were separated in the new Department of Homeland Security However anti terrorism measures have not slowed immigration to the United States America is poised to remain the world's major destination for immigrants and as patterns in U S history suggest most of the newcomers will soon become Americans However past success in integrating immigrants does not guarantee that integrating newcomers will be easy or automatic As immigrants continue to make and remake the country the United States must develop an immigration policy for the twenty first century BOOK JACKET U.S. Immigration Policy and the National Interest United States.
