The Politics of the Encounter Andy Merrifield, 2013-04-15 The Politics of the Encounter is a spirited interrogation of the city as a site of both theoretical inquiry and global social struggle The city writes Andy Merrifield remains important virtually and materially for progressive politics And yet he notes more than forty years have passed since Henri Lefebvre advanced the powerful ideas that still undergird much of our thinking about urbanization and urban society Merrifield rethinks the city in light of the vast changes to our planet since 1970 when Lefebvre's seminal Urban Revolution was first published At the same time he expands on Lefebvre's notion of the right to the city which was first conceived in the wake of the 1968 student uprising in Paris. We need to think less of cities as entities with borders and clear demarcations between what's inside and what's outside and emphasize instead the effects of planetary urbanization, a concept of Lefebvre's that Merrifield makes relevant for the ways we now experience the urban. The city from Tahrir Square to Occupy Wall Street seems to be the critical zone in which a new social protest is unfolding yet dissenters' aspirations are transcending the scale of the city physically and philosophically. Consequently we must shift our perspective from the right to the city to the politics of the encounter, says Merrifield. We must ask how revolutionary crowds form where they draw their energies from what kind of spaces they occur in and what kind of new spaces they produce.

Recent Social Trends in Russia 1960-1995 Irene A. Boutenko, 1997-07-22 The newest volume in the Comparative Charting of Social Change Series which documents patterns of social change in modernized societies. Recent Social Trends in Russia is a collection of statistical and sociological data on trends in Russian society that have never before been assembled in a comprehensive and systematic manner. It presents an extensive analysis of the major social transformations that took place in Russia both before and after the fall of the Communist system and dispels many illusions about Russian society in the twentieth century. Recent Social Trends in Russia reveals remarkable similarities between emerging trends in Russia and in Western countries during the last thirty-five years. Russian society shows a strong tendency toward modernization although the speed of change is sometimes slower than in Western industrialized countries. Similar to Western societies, Russia's population is aging, unemployment prevails among the young, and a new class of young professionals is emerging. The institution of marriage is losing its significance, emotional disorders and consumption of mood-altering substances are increasing, and religious beliefs and habits are becoming more diversified. Political upheavals over the last ten or twelve years and the collapse of Communism have not had much effect on the social landscape in Russia. There has, however, been an increase in the influence of Western culture and a violent backlash in fields that underwent forceful modernization. The findings suggest that Russian and Western societies are more similar than one would imagine and contradict the popular conception that Communist Russia fell out of world history for seventy years Disability Protests Sharon N. Barnartt, Richard K. Scotch, 2001 In 1952 the Federal Republic of West Germany concluded a treaty with Israel whereby the Germans had to pay three billion Deutschmarks in compensation for the Holocaust However the Israelis felt that Germany owed Israel a moral as well as a financial debt and thus expected further aid and protection Although Germany made several concessions in favour of the Jewish State particularly in the domain of armament as Germany's political status increased its national interest gradually took priority over that of Israel George Lavy examines the grounds which motivated Germany to grant aid to Israel and the change in their relations as the German economy flourished and gained influence in world affairs
