Wild Immunology—The Answers Are Out There Gregory M. Woods, Andrew S. Flies, 2019-03-20 Go into partnership with nature she does more than half the work and asks none of the fee Martin H Fisher Nature has undertaken an immense amount of work throughout evolution The evolutionary process has provided a power of information that can address key questions such as Which immune molecules and pathways are conserved across species Which molecules and pathways are exploited by pathogens to cause disease What methods can be broadly used or readily adapted for wild immunology How does co infection and exposure to a dynamic environment affect immunity Section 1 addresses these questions through an evolutionary approach Laboratory mice have been instrumental in dissecting the nuances of the immune system The first paper investigates the immunology of wild mice and reviews how evolution and ecology sculpt differences in the immune responses of wild mice and laboratory mice A better understanding of wild immunology is required and sets the scene for the subsequent papers Although nature doesn't ask for a fee it is appropriate that nature is repaid in one form or another The translational theme of the second section incorporates papers that translate wild immunology back to nature But any non human non laboratory mouse research environment is hindered by a lack of research tools hence the underlying theme throughout the second section Physiological resource allocation is carefully balanced according to the most important needs of the body Tissue homeostasis can involve trade offs between energy requirements of the host and compensatory mechanisms to respond to infection The third section comprises a collection of papers that employ novel strategies to understand how the immune system is compensated under challenging physiological situations Technology has provided substantial advances in understanding the immune system at cellular and molecular levels The specificity of these tools e.g monoclonal antibodies often limits the study to a specific species or strain A consequence of similar genetic sequences or cross reactivity is that the technology can be adapted to wild species Section 4 provides two examples of probing wild immunology by adapting technology developed for laboratory species

A Unifying Theory of Evolution Generated by Means of Information Modelling J. Brender McNair, 2016-09-13 Stringent ways of thinking conceptual frameworks are necessary in science The drawback is that the associated assumptions concepts rules and practice may become so deeply entrenched that they turn into tacit knowledge and hence give rise to constraints in scientific thought and practice that is a new kind of plethora that seriously blinds and thereby hampers scientific progress This book A Unifying Theory of Evolution Generated by Means of Information Modelling presents a methodology for describing complex knowledge domains It applies a template information model based on a dynamic structure of interrelated functions called the Mereon Matrix Application of this template model to the field of evolutionary theories enabled the unification of the sometimes chaotic and competing field of evolutionary theories large and small seamlessly in a shared framework The author has Masters degrees in both biochemistry and computer science as well as a European Doctorate and PhD in health informatics and has spent 35 years in full time research It is her particular combination of professional experience and expertise together with the template information model which has enabled her to write this book Whilst primarily aimed at a scientific audience and evolutionary biologists in particular the book will be of interest to all those looking for new approaches to exploring and explaining phenomena in nature and because the text is largely non technical in nature much of the content will also be accessible to a wider readership
