Ad Noctum Mena Thrace, 2015-07-15 It is not the hungry zombies waiting at every turn to devour the living that these survivors have to worry about It's been over a year since the fall of humanity and the rise of the dead No more nine to five grinds No more convenience stores No more demanding bosses telemarketers or worrying about finding free wifi No more law order or security No more government working hospitals or police forces The first institutions to crumble when the dead overwhelmed the living were the ones we rely on the most Boring predictable easy living is a thing of the past It's all about surviving now There's no guarantee of living through the hour let alone seeing a brand new day Garland has narrowly escaped a horde of the undead that wiped out most of her group Still alive she is desperate to find her twin and will do whatever it takes to reconnect with the last person in the world that holds any meaning to her Nathan has narrowly escaped a mad man that wiped out most of his group Still alive he is desperate to find any remaining survivors of his group and will do whatever it takes to keep his son safe They are brought together by unrelenting terror and tragedy believing the worst to be behind them It isn't The worst has yet to come There's a storm on the horizon The dark is coming and the weak are meat that the strong do eat Ad Noctum is the first volume of Still Breathing a suspenseful continuing story of survival horror
