Cadmean Letters Martin Bernal, 1990 Western civilization has long sought its cultural roots in the classical civilizations of the Aegean. During the twentieth century however it has been made increasingly clear that it owes a great debt to the civilizations of the Fertile Crescent. In the thick of the debate as to how much classical civilizations were influenced by the Levant has been the question of the date of the transmission of the alphabet. In this monograph Bernal takes up the question anew and marshals persuasive arguments that the date of transmission of the alphabet should be moved considerably earlier than generally has been thought to the middle of the second millennium B.C. Growing out of his work on Black Athena the intricate matters of alphabetic history and transmission are dealt with both in terms of the history of the investigation of the topic and also with regard to the specific working out of his own new proposal.

In this book you'll find many current and historical examples. You'll read about the suffragettes who attempted to burn down the theatre at Dublin and were sentenced to the hard labour of knitting and the lady who walked after she murdered her husband and child by setting them on fire then gained the mercy of the court with the claim that she was a childless widow all alone in the world.
