2014 Physical Science November Paper 1 National Paper:

What We Think About When We Try Not To Think About Global Warming Per Espen Stoknes, 2015 Today about 98 percent of scientists affirm that climate change is human made and about 2 percent still question it Despite that overwhelming majority though about half the population of rich countries like ours choose to believe the 2 percent And paradoxically this large camp of deniers grows even larger as more and more alarming proof of climate change has cropped up over the last decades This disconnect has both climate scientists and activists scratching their heads growing anxious and responding usually by repeating more facts to win the argument But the more climate facts pile up the greater the resistance to them grows and the harder it becomes to enact measures to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and prepare communities for the inevitable change ahead Is humanity up to the task It is a catch 22 that starts says psychologist and climate expert Per Espen Stoknes from an inadequate understanding of the way most humans think act and live in the world around them With dozens of examples he shows how to retell the story of climate change and apply communication strategies more fit for the task Publisher s description

Assessment of Solid-State Lighting, Phase Two National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Committee on Assessment of Solid-State Lighting, Phase 2, 2017-06-11 The standard incandescent light bulb which still works mainly as Thomas Edison invented it converts more than 90% of the consumed electricity into heat Given the availability of newer lighting technologies that convert a greater percentage of electricity into useful light there is potential to decrease the amount of energy used for lighting in both commercial and residential applications Although technologies such as compact fluorescent lamps CFLs have emerged in the past few decades and will help achieve the goal of increased energy efficiency solid state lighting SSL stands to play a large role in dramatically decreasing U S energy consumption for lighting Since the publication of the 2013 National Research Council report Assessment of Advanced Solid State Lighting the penetration of SSL has increased dramatically with a resulting savings in energy and costs that were foreshadowed by that study What was not anticipated then is the dramatic dislocation and restructuring of the SSL marketplace as cost reductions for light emitting diode LED components reduced profitability for LED manufacturers At the same time there has been the emergence of new applications for SSL which have the potential to create new markets and commercial opportunities for the SSL industry Assessment of Solid State Lighting Phase Two discusses these aspects of change highlighting the progress of commercialization and acceptance of SSL and reviewing the technical advances and challenges in achieving higher efficacy for LEDs and organic light emitting diodes This report will also discuss the recent trends in SSL manufacturing and opportunities for new applications and describe the role played by the Department of Energy DOE Lighting Program in the development of SSL

Oil's Deep State Kevin Taft, 2017-10-06 Why have democratic governments failed to take serious steps to reduce carbon emissions despite dire warnings and compelling evidence of the profound and growing threat posed by global warming Most of the writing on global warming is by scientists academics environmentalists and journalists Kevin Taft a former leader of the opposition in Alberta brings a fresh perspective through the insight he gained as an elected politician who had an insider's eyewitness view of the role of the oil industry His answer in brief The oil industry has captured key democratic institutions in both Alberta and Ottawa Taft begins his book with a perceptive observer's account of a recent court case in Ottawa which laid bare the tactics and techniques of the industry its insiders and lobbyists He casts dramatic new light on exactly how corporate lobbyists politicians bureaucrats universities and other organizations are working together to pursue the oil industry's agenda He offers a brisk tour of the recent work of scholars who have developed the concepts of the deep state and institutional capture to understand how one rich industry can override the public interest Taft views global warming and weakened democracy as two symptoms of the same problem the loss of democratic institutions to corporate influence and control He sees citizen engagement and direct action by the public as the only response that can unravel big oil's deep state

This book studies the prevalence of gender inequalities in the domains of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) in India. It explores the paradox of an increasing number of women pursuing higher education in STEM fields while a relatively low percentage enter the job market. The book analyzes the factors that contribute to the loss of potential contributions from women in science. It underscores the need to understand the construction of masculinity and femininity as well as male privilege and female disadvantage and how these concepts are associated with STEM. Lucid, topical, and rich in empirical data, this book will be indispensable for scholars and researchers of women's studies, gender studies, sociology of science, science and technology studies, political studies, and public policy. It will also be useful to policymakers, organizations, and professionals working in the STEM fields.
