Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of young adults. The study was conducted in a university setting. The participants were 20 young adults (10 males and 10 females) who were randomly assigned to either a training group or a control group. The training group participated in a 12-week program of aerobic and strength training, while the control group did not. The results of the study showed that the training group experienced significant improvements in physical fitness, including increased cardiovascular endurance, muscle strength, and body composition. Additionally, the training group also reported improvements in psychological health, including reduced stress levels and increased self-esteem. The control group did not experience these improvements. The study concluded that a 12-week training program can have a positive effect on the physical and psychological health of young adults.
