Scouting, 1952. Includes Annual Report of the Boy Scouts of America. I'm Feeling Lucky, Douglas

Edwards, 2018-06-01. A marketing director's story of working at a startup called Google in the early days of the tech boom. Vivid inside stories. Engrossing. Ken Auletta. Douglas Edwards wasn't an engineer or a twentysomething fresh out of school when he received a job offer from a small but growing search engine company at the tail end of the 1990s. But founders Larry Page and Sergey Brin needed staff to develop the brand identity of their brainchild, and Edwards fit the bill with his journalistic background at the San Jose Mercury News, the newspaper of Silicon Valley. It was a change of pace for Edwards to say the least and put him in a unique position to interact with and observe the staff as Google began its rocket ride to the top. In entertaining, self-deprecating style, he tells his story of participating in this moment of business and technology history, giving readers a chance to fully experience the bizarre mix of camaraderie and competition at this phenomenal company. Edwards, Google's first director of marketing and brand management, describes the idiosyncratic Page and Brin, the evolution of the famously nonhierarchical structure in which every employee finds a problem to tackle and works independently, the races to develop and implement each new feature, and the many ideas that never came to pass. I'm Feeling Lucky reveals what it's like to be indeed lucky, sort of an accidental millionaire, a reluctant bystander in a sea of computer geniuses who changed the world. This is a rare look at what happened inside the building of the most important company of our time. Seth Godin, author of Linchpin. An affectionate, compulsively readable recounting of the early years, 1999-2005, of Google. This lively, thoughtful business memoir is more entertaining than it really has any right to be and should be required reading for startup
