Briggs, 2025-09-30 Now in its 8th edition this well established and respected book by Adrian Briggs continues to deliver a full and complete statement of English law on civil jurisdiction and judgments As the United Kingdom will now not be re joining the Lugano Convention the treatment of judgments from EU Member States and the Lugano States has been reduced and the jurisdictional rules of Brussels Lugano regime are now dealt with only in outline This 8th edition untangles and re ties the loose ends left over from the process of disengagement from the European Union and restates the law of jurisdiction and judgments as it must be understood today Significant new material includes an expanded treatment of the increased opportunities for service out of the jurisdiction with and without permission and of the 2019 Hague Judgments Convention in effect for the United Kingdom from 1 July 2025 Otherwise recent developments of which there have been many across the field of jurisdiction and judgments in civil and commercial matters are examined in proper detail This rigorously updated new edition reasserts its position as an authoritative and comprehensive reference for all lawyers and legal practitioners working in the broad area of commercial litigation

Making One's Way in the World Martin Bell, 2020-02-28 The book draws on the evidence of landscape archaeology palaeoenvironmental studies ethnohistory and animal tracking to address the neglected topic of how we identify and interpret past patterns of movement in the landscape It challenges the pessimism of previous generations which regarded prehistoric routes such as hollow ways as generally undatable The premise is that archaeologists tend to focus on sites while neglecting the patterns of habitual movement that made them part of living landscapes Evidence of past movement is considered in a multi scalar way from the individual footprint to the long distance path including the traces created in vegetation by animal and human movement It is argued that routes may be perpetuated over long timescales creating landscape structures which influence the activities of subsequent generations In other instances radical changes of axes of communication and landscape structures provide evidence of upheaval and social change Palaeoenvironmental and ethnohistorical evidence from the American North West coast sets the scene with evidence for the effects of burning animal movement faeces deposition and transplantation which can create readable routes along which are favoured resources Evidence from European hunter gatherer sites hints at similar practices of niche construction on a range of spatial scales On a local scale footprints help to establish axes of movement the locations of lost settlements and activity areas Wood trackways likewise provide evidence of favoured patterns of movement and past settlement location Among early farming communities alignments of burial mounds enclosure entrances and other monuments indicate axes of communication From the middle Bronze Age in Europe there is more clearly defined evidence of trackways flanked by ditches and fields Landscape scale survey and excavation enables the dating of trackways using spatial relationships with dated features and many examples indicate long term continuity of routeways Where fields flank routeways a range of methods including scientific approaches provide dates Prehistorians have often assumed that Ridgeways provided the main axes of early movement but there is little evidence for their early origins and rather better evidence for early routes crossing topography and providing connections between different environmental zones The book concludes with a case study of the Weald of South East England which demonstrates that some axes of cross topographic movement used as droveways and generally considered as early medieval can be shown to be of prehistoric origin One reason that dryland routes have proved difficult to recognise is that insufficient attention has been paid to the parts played by riverine and maritime longer distance communication It is argued that understanding the origins of the paths we use today contributes to appreciation of the distinctive qualities of landscapes Appreciation will help to bring about effective strategies for conservation of mutual benefit to people and wildlife by maintaining and enhancing corridors of connectivity between different landscape zones including fragmented nature reserves and valued places In these ways an understanding of past routeways can contribute to sustainable landscapes communities and quality of life

Rethinking Judicial Jurisdiction in Private International Law Milana Karayanidi, 2020-02-20 This book explores the theory and practice of judicial jurisdiction within the field of private international law It offers a revised look at values justifying the power of courts to hear and decide cross border disputes and demonstrates that a re conceptualisation of jurisdiction is needed Rather than deriving from territorial power of states jurisdiction in civil and commercial cross border matters ought to be driven by party autonomy This autonomy can be limited by certain considerations of equality and critical state sovereign interests The book applies this normative view to the existing rules of jurisdiction in the European Union and the Russian Federation These regimes are chosen due to their unique positions towards values in private international law and contrasting societal norms that generate and accommodate these values Notwithstanding disparate cultural and political ideas these regimes reveal a surprising level of consistency when it comes to enforcement of party autonomy There is nevertheless room for improvement The book demonstrates to scholars policy makers and lawmakers that jurisdiction should be re centred around the interests of private actors and proposes ways to improve the current rules
