Reeve, Michael B. Kane, 2012-12-06 This volume explores the recent national trend toward adoption of performance assessments Embraced at all levels of educational decision making state district school and teacher the shapes these assessments take and the affects they have at the classroom level can differ significantly from one setting to another Based on case studies of 16 schools this study describes what performance assessments actually look like the types of tasks they pose to children the scoring methods used the purposes to which they are put and how they fit in with other components of assessment systems It also shows how they differ when they are introduced by state departments of education districts and schools themselves Factors that affect policymakers and educators abilities to successfully design and introduce performance assessments are also explored These include the purposeful coordination of performance assessment with related education reforms such as the adoption of content and student performance standards and the professional development for teachers necessary to the successful implementation of performance assessments Barriers to adoption most notably the challenges of developing a technically sound performance assessment are discussed as well Crucial to teachers ability to appropriate performance assessments for use in their own classrooms is their involvement in designing and implementing them Although it would be impossible for a state or school district to involve all teachers in the design of a performance assessment they can take steps to foster teachers understanding of the purposes and methods of the assessment thereby supporting their ability to use similar methods in their daily teaching Toward that end this book describes the experiences of teachers and students with a range of assessments that all fall under the umbrella of performance assessment In addition it provides rich illustrations of those experiences across a diverse group of schools descriptions of the trade offs inherent in developing a student assessment system demonstrations of why no single assessment can be all things to all people and valuable insights for teachers administrators policymakers and researchers who want to improve their understanding of how performance assessments work in practice and how they may best serve to improve teaching and learning Houghton Mifflin Math Central: Student text, 1998 Anticipation and the control of voluntary action Dorit Wenke, Rico Fischer, A major hallmark in the adaptive control of voluntary action is the ability to anticipate short and long term future events Anticipation in its various forms is an important prerequisite for higher order cognitive abilities such as planning reasoning and the pursuit of both immediate goals and long term goals that may even stand in opposition to immediate desires and needs e g to invest in pension funds Therefore it is not surprising that diverse and rather independent research lines have evolved all somehow targeting various anticipatory capacities that are involved in the control of voluntary action and thus contribute to the uniqueness of human goal directed behavior For example prediction of the incentive value of action outcomes drives goal directed instrumental behavior e g Dickinson Rushworth Prinz 1990 Furthermore the degree of match between intended anticipated and actual action effects has been proposed to be a major determinant of motor programming and online action corrections Jeannerod 1981 motor learning e g Wolpert Diedrichsen e g Abell Happ Los Nobre Coull 2010 and to anticipate conflict e g Correa Rao Nobre 2009 Voluntary action is influenced by the anticipation and prediction of mental effort in task processing e g Song Schwarz 2008 In addition the anticipation of long term future social consequences e g expected aloneness has been shown to affect cognitive mechanisms involved in logic and reasoning e g Baumeister Twenge Nuss 2002 Last but not least learning of statistical contingencies e g conflict frequency leads to the anticipation and prediction of context specific executive control requirements e g Crump Gong Milliken 2006 Dreisbach Haider 2006 The aim of the present Research Topic is to provide a platform that offers the possibility of cross fertilization and enhanced visibility among to date rather segregated research lines
