

2008 NEC Study Guide For "Services"
(This Study Guide was prepared by Gaylord Poe)

Many questions come to mind when reviewing NEC Article 230. This study guide will address some of the more common code questions that frequently arise concerning service installations for residential and light commercial projects.

1. What is considered to be "Service"? In my experience, one of the biggest problems that arise when people (usually electricians vs. electrical inspectors!) are debating Art. 230 is that often what the parties are arguing as being "Service" is not "Service" at all! So first things first...let's discuss what "Service" is and what it isn't.
 - a. Art. 100 of the NEC defines Service as: "The conductors and equipment for delivering electric energy from the serving utility to the wiring system of the premises served."
 - b. Art. 100 of the NEC defines Service Conductors as: "The conductors from the service point to the service disconnecting means."
 - c. Art. 100 of the NEC defines Service Point as: "The point of connection between the facilities of the serving utility and the premises wiring."

You'll also see in Article 100 that there are definitions for "Service Cable", "Service Drop", "Service-Entrance Conductors, Overhead System", "Service-Entrance Conductors, Underground System", "Service Equipment", and "Service Lateral". Remember that when you are discussing any of these items you are still discussing items that are covered by the term "Service". Only these items are subject to the rules found in Art. 230.

2. Consider this example - A small commercial retail strip center is fed underground from the utility and has an 800-amp meter center with an 800-amp main circuit breaker. There are eight individual meters. Seven meters each have a 100-amp circuit breaker supplying a 100-amp feeder run to each tenant space. The eighth meter supplies a 60-amp house panel. In this example, "Service" consists of the underground supply to and including the 800 amp main section in the meter center. That's it...nothing downstream of this main section is "Service".
3. Misinterpretations - In reviewing the above example, it's not uncommon to hear comments that the installation failed either in Plan Review or failed during field inspection because: "There are eight services on the building." Or "The tenant
