The Civil Rights Movement in America DBQ Pre-Exam

Background Information:

United States History has been a history of struggle: struggle to overcome opposition and oppression; struggle to gain rights of access and opportunity; struggle to gain freedom. That struggle is clearly visible in the case of African-Americans and their struggle for legal, political, and social equality. Following the American Civil War, blacks were given equal protection under the law, rights of citizenship, and the vote. Despite having these freedoms granted legally, blacks were continually denied equal access and opportunity in the United States. In Plessy v. Ferguson (1896), the Supreme Court legalized the separation of blacks and whites in all facets of social life from train cars to schools. The legalized segregation of the races resulted in limited opportunities and unequal access to education, employment, and representation. It was not until 1954, after two World Wars, that the Supreme Court would reverse that decision in Brown v. Board of Education. This Supreme Court ruling marked the beginning of the Civil Rights Movement that emerged in the United States, and played a significant role in public opinion and policies until the end of the 1960s.

Document A

"We conclude that, in the field of public education, the doctrine of "separate but equal" has no place. Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal. Therefore, we hold that the plaintiffs and others similarly situated for whom the actions have been brought are, by reason of the segregation complained of, deprived of the equal protection of the laws guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment. This disposition makes unnecessary any discussion whether such segregation also violates the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment."

~ Excerpt from Brown v. Bd. Of Education decision (1954)

1. What's the significance of Brown v. Bd of Education in the Civil Rights movements? The Brown Decision gained the most attention of the legal cases challenging segregation. The holding in Brown struck down segregation in schooling as an unconstitutional violation of the 14th Amendment's Equal Protection Clause. Though not the first case to chip away at Plessy, the Brown holding had the most impact. It was relevant to some 12 million schoolchildren in 21 states. The resistance to the ruling was highlighted in the national news. States tried to avoid adhering to both Brown and Brown II ("all deliberate speed").
