

Question 8 of 39

The scores on a standardized test for a certain year are modeled using the normal distribution. The mean of the distribution is 72.4 points and the standard deviation is 5.5 points.

In the figure, V is a number along the axis and is under the highest part of the curve. And, U and W are numbers along the axis that are each the same distance away from V .

Use the empirical rule to choose the best value for the percentage of the area under the curve between values of U , V , and W .

Question 9 of 39

Calculator interface showing calculations:

- $72.4 + 5.5 = 77.9$
- $Ans + 5.5 = 83.4$
- $72.4 - 5.5 = 66.9$
- $Ans - 5.5 = 61.4$

The calculator also displays a keypad with various mathematical functions and a numeric keypad.

Productivity in Higher Education Caroline M. Hoxby, Kevin Stange, 2020-01-10 How do the benefits of higher education compare with its costs and how does this comparison vary across individuals and institutions These questions are fundamental to quantifying the productivity of the education sector The studies in Productivity in Higher Education use rich and novel administrative data modern econometric methods and careful institutional analysis to explore productivity issues The authors examine the returns to undergraduate education differences in costs by major the productivity of for profit schools the productivity of various types of faculty and of outcomes the effects of online education on the higher education market and the ways in which the productivity of different institutions responds to market forces The analyses recognize five key challenges to assessing productivity in higher education the potential for multiple student outcomes in terms of skills earnings invention and employment the fact that colleges and universities are multiproduct firms that conduct varied activities across many domains the fact that students select which school to attend based in part on their aptitude the difficulty of attributing outcomes to individual institutions when students attend more than one and the possibility that some of the benefits of higher education may arise from the system as a whole rather than from a single institution The findings and the approaches illustrated can facilitate decision making processes in higher education The Power of Technology for Learning Noah P. Barsky, Mike Clements, Jakob Ravn, Kelly Smith, 2008-09-23 In today's dynamic global business environment where knowledge is a main asset and learning becomes the most important process Business Education needs to employ the right practices to develop future leaders Businesses require graduates that become true experts But can business schools indeed create learning experiences that address the needs of the global marketplace Can they teach students to build learning organizations The articles in this volume detail successful approaches developed by business educators and researchers The approaches have been implemented to solve real problems and to provide students with the ethical and analytical abilities they will need to both compete and contribute to the betterment of others The thematic part of this volume focuses on the potential of interactive on line activities to promote business and economics education They demonstrate the benefits that learning technologies can bring and show how to overcome potential problem issues Excel Statistics Neil J.
