group has a significant concentration but does not necessarily constitute a majority Wei Li documents the processes that have evolved with the spatial transformation of the Chinese American community of Los Angeles and that have converted the San Gabriel Valley into ethnoburbs in the latter half of the twentieth century and she examines the opportunities and challenges that occurred as a result of these changes Traditional ethnic and immigrant settlements customarily take the form of either ghettos or enclaves Thus the majority of scholarly publications and mass media covering the San Gabriel Valley has described it as a Chinatown located in Los Angeles suburbs Li offers a completely different approach to understanding and analyzing this fascinating place By conducting interviews with residents a comparative spatial examination of census data and other statistical sources and fieldwork coupled with her own holistic view of the area Li gives readers an effective and fine tuned socio spatial analysis of the evolution of a new type of racially defined place The San Gabriel Valley tells a unique story but its evolution also speaks to those experiencing a similar type of ethnic and racial conurbation In sum Li sheds light on processes that are shaping other present and future ethnically and racially diverse communities The concept of the ethnoburb has redefined the way geographers and other scholars think about ethnic space place and process This book will contribute significantly to both theoretical and empirical studies of immigration by presenting a more intensive and thorough take on arguments about spatial and social processes in urban and suburban America
