1. This question is a long free-response question. Show your work for each part of the question.

Students want to verify that the centripetal acceleration of an object undergoing uniform circular motion with tangential speed v and radius r can be described by the equation $a_c = \frac{v^2}{r}$. In the experiment, the students use a variable speed turntable that can rotate about a pole at its center. A track is attached to the top of the turntable such that a cart of mass m can freely move toward and away from the center pole of the turntable. One end of a force probe is attached to the pole, and the other end is attached to the cart, as shown above. All frictional forces are negligible.

(a) The dot below represents the cart while undergoing uniform circular motion and at the location shown in the figure above. On the dot, draw and label the forces (not components) exerted on the cart. Each force must be represented by a distinct arrow starting on, and pointing away from, the appropriate dot.

Note: Draw the relative lengths of all vectors to reflect the relative magnitudes of all the forces.

Economic Sociodynamics Ruslan Grinberg, Alexander Rubinstein, 2005-08-15 In this ambitious book the authors challenge mainstream economic theory by reconsidering the principle of individualism as its foundation They refer to that version which fails to recognize the existence of the interests of society as such and thus excludes the role of the state as an independent market player seeking to realize these interests The outcome is a new theoretical concept called Economic Sociodynamics The book reveals this concept in detail in particular its key notions of the sociodynamic multiplier and the rational behavior of the state
