4D Visualization of Matter Ahmed H Zewail,2014-09-12 Ever since the beginning of mankind s efforts to pursue scientific inquiry into the laws of nature visualization of the very distant and the very small has been paramount The examples are numerous A century ago the atom appeared mysterious a raisin or plum pie of no structure until it was visualized on the appropriate length and time scales Similarly with telescopic observations a central dogma of the cosmos was changed and complexity yielded to simplicity of the heliocentric structure and motion in our solar system For matter in over a century of developments major advances have been made to explore the inner microscopic structures and dynamics These advances have benefited many fields of endeavor but visualization was incomplete it was limited either to the 3D spatial structure or to the 1D temporal evolution However in systems with myriads of atoms 4D spatiotemporal visualization is essential for dissecting their complexity The biological world is rich with examples and many molecular diseases cannot be fully understood without such direct visualization as for example in the case of Alzheimer s and Parkinson s The same is true for phenomena in materials science chemistry and nanoscience This anthology is an account of the collected works that have emerged over the past decade from Caltech Through recent publications the volume provides overviews of the principles the electron based techniques and the applications made Thanks to advances in imaging principles and technology it is now possible with 4D electron microscopy to reach ten orders of magnitude improvement in time resolution while simultaneously conserving the atomic spatial resolution in visualization This is certainly a long way from Robert Hooke s microscopy which was recorded in his 1665 masterpiece Micrographia

Physico-chemical Aspects of Textile Coloration Stephen M. Burkinshaw,2016-02-08 The production of textile materials comprises a very large and complex global industry that utilises a diverse range of fibre types and creates a variety of textile products As the great majority of such products are coloured predominantly using aqueous dyeing processes the coloration of textiles is a large scale global business in which complex procedures are used to apply different types of dye to the various types of textile material. The development of such dyeing processes is the result of substantial research activity undertaken over many decades into the physico-chemical aspects of dye adsorption and the establishment of dyeing theory which seeks to describe the mechanism by which dyes interact with textile fibres. Physico-Chemical Aspects of Textile Coloration provides a comprehensive treatment of the physical chemistry involved in the dyeing of the major types of natural man-made and synthetic fibres with the principal types of dye. The book covers fundamental aspects of the physical and chemical structure of both fibres and dyes together with the structure and properties of water in relation to dyeing, dyeing as an area of study as well as the terminology employed in dyeing technology and science, contemporary views of intermolecular forces and the nature of the interactions that can occur between dyes and fibres at a molecular level, fundamental principles involved in dyeing theory as represented by the thermodynamics and kinetics of dye sorption, detailed accounts of the mechanism of dyeing that applies to cotton and other cellulosic fibres, polyester, polyamide, wool, polyacrylonitrile and silk fibres, non-aqueous dyeing as represented by the use of air, organic solvents and supercritical CO₂ fluid as alternatives to water as application medium. The up-to-date text is supported by a large number of tables, figures and illustrations as well as footnotes and widespread use of references to published work. The book is essential reading for students, teachers, researchers and professionals involved in textile coloration.
