Learning objectives

After completing the worksheet, you should be able to:

- use your knowledge along with information provided to answer the questions about amino acids, triglycerides, proteins, and enzymes
- interpret data and identify trends using your knowledge and information provided.

Task

Begin by reading the information on glutathione and then answer the questions related to it. Continue with the questions on proteins and enzymes.

Glutathione

Glutathione occurs in most eukaryotic cells. It acts as an antioxidant and protects cells from toxins, such as free radicals.

Glutathione is a tripeptide, i.e. it is composed of a chain of three linked amino acids: glutamate, cysteine and glycine (written from the N-terminus to the C-terminus, as is usual in biochemistry). It has an atypical link between glutamate and cysteine, which involves the carboxyl group of glutamate's variable group and cysteine's amino group. The link between cysteine and glycine is the usual type of link between amino acids in a peptide, polypeptide or protein.
