

Ex-basketball Player Analysis

"Ex-Basketball Player," by John Updike is the poem that struck me this week.

It is about a man who once had great potential but never followed through with it. Flick Webb is the focus of this poem; he was a basketball star in high school quite some time ago, but nowadays he merely pumps gas at a local station. The first stanza provides the readers with geographical information about the location of the gas station. "Pearl Avenue runs past the high school lot, bends with the trolley tracks, and stops, cut off before it has a chance to go two blocks," (line 1-3). This description and particular choice of words represents the course of Flick's life.

The description begins at the high school lot, symbolizing when Flick finished high school. His adult life then began to get started, bending "with the trolley tracks", but suddenly it was stopped by this gas station, "cut off" before he really got anywhere in life, before he had "a chance to go two blocks," (2-3). The gas station, "Berth's Garage" it is called, is the place where Flick will probably spend the rest of his life, being just the person who "helps Berth out," (6). The second stanza describes Flick (whose name might come from the flicking of a basketball) as standing among the gas pumps.

The pumps stand "five on a side," (8) which could be a reference to basketball where there are five players on each side. Updike describes one of the pumps as "without a head at all—more of a football type," (12). This could be a subtle jab at football players, who are sometimes pinned as not being the brightest individuals. This mockery of a basketball game goes further when Flick dribbles an inner tube as a joke later in the third stanza.

The third stanza describes Flick's past, the prime of his years playing basketball in high school. "He was good: in fact, the best," (14). He held a county record, which suggests that he was not the best ever, since it is a county record as compared to a state or higher record, but he definitely still had ample potential. "The ball loved Flick," (16).

This is contrasted in the next stanza, where his hands and fine touch which were loved by the ball "make no difference to the lug wrench," (24). Updike uses the most striking imagery at the end of the third stanza; "His hands were like wild birds," (18). This can imply that his hands were nimble and extremely fast, but still maintained an air of the athletic gracefulness that birds have. In the fourth stanza, Flick is seen as only selling gas, performing maintenance on people's cars, and jokingly dribbling inner tubes. This is what all his skill and potential has amounted to.

In the fifth and final stanza, even on his free time off work Flick wastes his life playing pinball, drinking soda, and smoking. He "just nods...toward bright applauding tiers of Necco Wafers, Nibs, and Juju Beads," (28-30). Applauding tiers, n

More Black Athletes in the Media Michael A. Banks,2014-02-13 Originally published as a dissertation in 1993 this revised edition of Black Athletes in the Media is a sociohistorical documentation of trends in the characterization of black athletes in the news media This study seeks to demonstrate and explain the ambiguity and dilemma of black acceptance in the American ideal with respect to black sporting achievements over the Twentieth Century The evolution of black stereotypes depictions and generalizations are traced and exposed in contemporary media With respect to the media as the foremost propagator of the racial stereotype it has the ability to shape influence and arouse public opinion through the manipulation of controversial events As a result social imagination is thus enhanced by this authority and keeper of social values The major attention given to black and ethnic athletes by the media represents and reflects a consistent pattern of racial assessments and stereotypical journalistic attitudes

Conflict of Interest in the Professions Michael Davis,Andrew Stark,2001-11-01 The notion of conflict of interest is more relevant today than ever Ethical sensitivities about the relationship between professionals and those they serve is a source of constant debate This book sets a new standard for work on this perennial topic collecting a set of practical essays by top applied ethicists on a wide variety of professions and occupations Some conflicts of interest arise because a profession takes on many roles while serving one goal others take on one role but serve multiple goals Some conflicts are internal to the profession others such as family or business connections are external The essays in this volume address such diverse conflicts in a comprehensive way in an attempt to make useful comparisons across professions Containing fifteen original chapters by noted scholars of applied ethics this volume systematically explores professions including law medicine journalism engineering financial services anthropology film physical therapy and literary criticism An introductory chapter surveys and contextualizes work on the topic while the concluding chapter offers us a new way to compare conflicts of interest across professions and occupations Conflict of Interest in the Professions will be of great practical interest to scholars of applied ethics and law as well as to professionals in the fields discussed
