Populist Authoritarianism Wenfang Tang, 2016 Populist Authoritarianism focuses on the Chinese Communist Party which governs the world s largest population in a single party authoritarian state Wenfang Tang attempts to explain the seemingly contradictory trends of the increasing number of protests on the one hand and the results of public opinion surveys that consistently show strong government support on the other hand The book points to the continuity from the CCP s revolutionary experiences to its current governing style even though China has changed in many ways on the surface in the post Mao era The book proposes a theoretical framework of Populist Authoritarianism with six key elements including the Mass Line ideology accumulation of social capital public political activism and contentious politics a government that is responsive to hype weak political and civil institutions and a high level of regime trust These traits of Populist Authoritarianism are supported by empirical evidence drawn from multiple public opinion surveys conducted from 1987 to 2014 Although the CCP currently enjoys strong public support such a system is inherently vulnerable due to its institutional deficiency Public opinion can swing violently due to policy failure and the up and down of a leader or an elite faction The drastic change of public opinion cannot be filtered through political institutions such as elections and the rule of law creating system wide political earthquakes its Governance in the Gauteng City-Region Kerry Bobbins,2015-05-29 Acid mine drainage AMD has generated an enormous amount of media interest and public concern in the Gauteng City Region GCR over the last decade However it has been framed as a narrow technical concern with government action being directed towards securing the necessary engineering and processing solutions as quickly as possible to prevent decant and treat acid mine water to industrial standards This has arguably limited the scope for full discussion and debate on the impacts of AMD particularly for the environment and this bears implications for how AMD has been managed in the GCR Government s immediate short and long term interventions to address AMD have been set out as a straight forward solution but over time more complex environmental concerns have emerged Becoming more evident over the last few years is that one of the main impacts of AMD will be its effect on the overall water security in the Vaal River System VRS on which the GCR relies for its supply of potable water Limits on water abstraction from the VRS together with the increasing need to maintain the overall water quality in the system through dilution and treatment activities means that AMD is beginning to manifest as a binding constraint on economic development and a burden on society in particular via escalating costs for water consumers Fiscal constraints are likely to see GCR residents and businesses pick up more and more of the costs associated with the treatment of AMD through the format of increased municipal tariffs With final decisions on municipal tariffs now pending the broader yet invisible impacts of AMD loom large This means that the debate has moved far beyond the issue of predicted decant in each of the Witwatersrand s mining basins Water security for the GCR and who will carry the costs associated with the long term treatment of AMD have instead taken centre stage This paper carefully updates the historical record on AMD since the publishing of a GCRO Provocation on the issue in 2010 In doing so it argues that the way in which AMD has been governed raises a flag around how the political economy of an issue such as AMD should be understood publicly debated and managed In particular it suggests that the governance of an environmental challenge such as AMD is not only about finding a technical solution The lack of platforms to ensure well informed public deliberation especially over such issues as who will pay and how must be addressed to ensure more equitable and transparent decision making In light of the broader mine waste legacy inherited by the GCR and the strong likelihood of environmental contamination becoming more commonplace in the future these concerns are not only limited to AMD They will only grow in importance over time
